First Actual Photographs of Canadians Invading France

Flown by bomber across the Atlantic, these pictures here and others on page 2 are the first actual invasion pictures to arrive in Canada. All pictures printed up until now have been telephotoed. Highly-trained Canadian assault troops were the first soldiers to storm a sector of the French invasion coast. Up to the sloping, channel-washed beaches, thickly mined and littered with booby traps, they came in small landing craft. Engineers had done a great job in clearing up obstacles, but some of the craft were put out of action. Despite heavy machine gun and other fire from Nazi strong-points, the Canadians landed and progressed. Here the Assault Landing Craft are shown headed for the beaches shortly after being lowered from their mother ships.

Monty Lauds Canadian Brigade,
Says 'Battle of Beaches' Won

By WILLIAM STEWART
WITH THE ALLIED TROOPS IN FRANCE (CP)—Gen. Montgomery, reporting on the Normandy campaign tonight, paid high tribute to the work of a Canadian infantry brigade, part of the Canadian 3rd Division, which has been in the thick of the fighting since D-day.

The Allied invasion commander, in a talk with British, Canadian and U.S. correspondents, said:

"The brigade landed on the beaches and went right away to its objective inland and still stands there. It was very good. It was excellent."

Gen. Montgomery added the western troops' feat had not been equalled on the "British front," explaining by that term he meant British and Empire invasion troops.

FIRST BATTLE WON

Gen. Montgomery said: "We have won what I would call the battle of the beaches," and declared "a great many of the enemy have been killed."

"The Allied commander said the Japanese—regular soldiers, not merely observers—were fighting alongside their Axis partners and a small number of them already have been taken prisoner and others killed."

Gen. Montgomery said "the beach where the landing of the U.S. troops took place east of the Carentan estuary was found being defended by a German division which was not a coastal division. It was a very good division and fought very well. German prisoners said the division had been brought up from behind to thicken the crust of the coastal defences and it actually was in the process of carrying out exercises when the Americans attacked."

"There was very heavy fighting on that American beach all D-Day, swaying back and forth, and by the end of the day the Americans were not more than 100 yards inland and were hanging on by their eyelids. There is no doubt about it that the American troops did absolutely magnificently in recovery."

Early Call for Tenders Forecast
On Services Hospital In Victoria

Plans for the combined joint services and Department of Pensions and National Health 250-bed hospital in Victoria will be ready to submit for tender at the end of this month, R. W. Mayhew, M.P., home on a flying visit, announced today.

His statement was based on a summary compiled by officials in Ottawa, who suggested the construction be of monolithic concrete walls with a terracotta backing with reinforced concrete roof slabs instead of the previously proposed wooden joists. The specifications suggested would establish a permanent fire-proof type of building, Mr. Mayhew said.

The Victoria member mentioned the offer by the city of the Gorge Park as a site for the hospital. He planned, he said, to ask naval and Department of Pensions and National Health officials here to inspect the Gorge Park in company with city officials and himself before he returns to Ottawa. He is scheduled to leave for the east Thursday.

Ing from that very unpleasant situation, and today these same troops are miles inland—very good, very good indeed."

Gen. Montgomery said the situation was retrieved by three things:

"First, by the gallantry of the American soldier who is a very brave man.

"Second, by the grand supporting fire given from the sea by the Allied navy.

"And third, by the support given from the air by the fighter-bombers who knew the situation and came down low to shoot up Germans at close range.

"The retrieving of that situation is probably one of the finest things done in this operation—very fine indeed. Wonderful!"

Wearing a grey turtle-neck sweater, fawn-colored corduroy trousers and his famous black tank corps beret, the Allied ground force chief spoke to a group of some 40 front line correspondents for more than an hour.

REACHES BEHIND

"The beaches are now behind us," he said. "The violence, poyor and speed of our initial assault carried us over the beaches and inland very quickly."

"That was my initial instruction to the senior officers. I said that every man must be imbued with an idea—to penetrate quickly and deeply into enemy country and pay out claims inland. And that was done."

"We have suffered losses because the Germans in pillboxes remained behind our line. Also there were a considerable number of German snipers. All that had to be cleaned up."

"There is still one pocket of Germans holding out, but I think they are leaving at the moment."

The wiry, twinkling-eyed commander said he was "very pleased any quite happy with the progress so far."

"Our soldiers, American and British, are in tremendous form," he declared. "Their tails are very high up in the air. They are full of beans. And they have already got the measure of the enemy."

Allied Columns
Nearing Orbetello,
71 Miles Above Rome

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ROME (AP)—Fifth Army troops have occupied Monte Flascio, an important road junction near the shore of Lake Bolsena, and other columns pushing along the Italian west coast are approaching Orbetello, 71 miles northwest of Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

Eighth Army columns advancing up both sides of the Tiber neared Bagno Reggione, west of the river, and Rieti, east of it.

In the mountainous central sector, Avezzano and its neighboring villages have been occupied, while in the Adriatic sector all Germans have been cleared from the area south of the Pescara River and Allied troops have pushed ahead to maintain contact with the withdrawing Germans.

A gain of 45 miles was announced for 5th Army units along the west coast.

FARMLAND TAKEN

Among the areas to fall into Allied hands was Lake Fucino, near Avezzano, which some years ago was drained and now is a 45,000-acre tract of rich farmland.

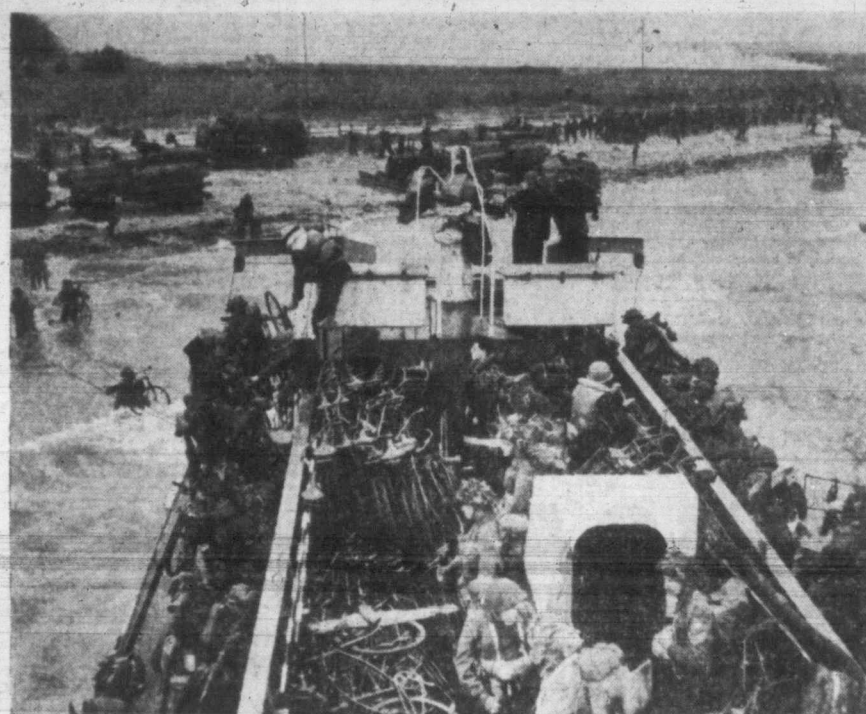

Headquarters disclosed the 6th South African Armored Division was among the 8th Army units which advanced through the Liri and Sacco valleys.

1,267 Say Army Cars
Travel Too Fast

Belief that vehicles of the armed forces travel faster than necessary on the roads of Esquimaux, thereby endangering the lives of children both of school age and younger, was expressed by 1,267 persons of 1,271 who signed a questionnaire on the matter, circulated over the weekend by the Esquimaux Board of School Trustees, Benjamin Caley, chairman, said today.

Four persons signed the negative column of the questionnaire. "I think those figures indicate the feeling of the people of Esquimaux on the matter," Mr. Caley said and added that he felt the district could have been covered more fully by the questionnaire had there been more time to circulate it.

The board intends to contact the municipal council and the police commission and offer recommendations, Mr. Caley said. "One line of action may be the lodging of a very strong protest to Ottawa and another might be the extension of school zones from the present few hundred yards to nearly half a mile. I believe we have the power to do that," Mr. Caley said.

This shows Canadian troops making their way through the surf on the invasion coast and a Canadian sailor handing a bicycle to a soldier just leaving an LCI of the Canadian Navy. Jammed in the open hold and along the gangways at each side of the landing craft, scores of other soldiers await their turn to go ashore on the soil of Normandy.

Russians Drive
Up to 25 Miles
Into Finn Defences

MOSCOW (AP)—Launching a major offensive designed to knock Finland out of the war and isolate approximately 100,000 Nazi troops in the northern part of that country, the Red Army rolled forward along the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad today after cracking Finnish defences on a 25-mile front.

A communique Sunday night which announced the new drive said Soviet troops already had advanced 12 to 25 miles, and indicated they were moving forward in high gear.

This offensive evidently was co-ordinated closely with Allied operations in France, and represented a step in the grand Allied strategy worked out at the Tehran conference.

Troops under Col. Gen. Leonid Govorov, who lifted the siege of Leningrad, launched the push Friday, just one month after the fall of Sevastopol—a month devoid of major activity along the long front.

The Soviet communique declared Russian forces had captured 82 towns and villages, including the rail junction of Terijoki, 27 miles airline northwest of Leningrad and 160 miles east of the Finnish capital of Helsinki.

Hail of Bombs

By GLADWIN HILL
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (AP)—U.S. heavy bombers and streams of lighter craft pumped a steady hail of bombs and lead into German defences today in the greatest aerial blows to date supporting the invasion of France.

Flying in fine weather, the Allied air forces by noon had run up more sorties than all day Sunday—when 7,000 planes slammed the Germans from dawn on—after a night in which R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers had pounded four key rail centres in France and gone to Berlin—heavies, mediums, lights, fighter-bombers and fighters raced over the battlelines and far into France, bombing and strafing.

A significant new point in the support campaign became apparent. Squadrons of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. fighters were attacking specific targets in rapid-fire order on calls from ground units—which meant that newly-established air bases on French soil were clicking.

British-Canadian Forces Fight On
2 Sides of Caen

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE (CP)—U.S. troops have seized Carentan, stronghold at the narrowest neck of the Cherbourg peninsula, field dispatches said today, and German broadcasts pictured an encirclement threat to the bastion of Caen on the Orne River by British and Canadian forces.

But between Caen and Bayeux to the northwest, British forces apparently had been driven out of the town of Tilly-sur-Seulles, seven miles southeast of Bayeux. Heavy fighting raged there.

Other U.S. troops plunged 18 miles inland at the centre of the altering Nazi line in Normandy.

(A delayed dispatch from headquarters of Gen. Montgomery, the Allied commander, quoted him as saying: "We have won the battle of the beaches.")

The Allies jammed out gains on all three main sectors, supported by 1,400 U.S. heavy bombers blasting 16 airfields and six bridges in the greatest single aerial mission of the war.

Besides occupying the flood-gate-control city of Carentan, U.S. troops were within 14 miles of Cherbourg itself from the southeast, and had punched halfway across the jutting cape, cracking the centre of the Cherbourg line.

The drive inland to the east captured the whole Cerisy forest, advancing eight miles in a day.

The Forest of Cerisy is 18 miles due south from the coastline and 10 miles southwest of Bayeux. German reports indicated British and Canadian forces are thrusting southwest of Bayeux in an endeavor to effect a new junction with U.S. formations in that region.

Headquarters said the bridgehead now is 60 miles wide and added that the situation is "a little better than satisfactory."

The Germans claimed Caen was entirely in Nazi hands today.

British and Canadian forces, east and west of that stronghold, six miles inland on the Orne River were engaged in furious encounters with German units.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, in a field dispatch said that "although Caen is not captured yet, a considerable German force has been brought to battle and hit hard."

Caen Threatened
With Encirclement

German broadcasts said Caen near the eastern flank of the Allied zone, was menaced by encirclement, with British and Canadian troops slashing nine miles east of the city. Munro reported the British 6th Air-borne Division—which includes Canadian paratroopers—was engaged in hard fighting with German armored forces east of the city.

The German high command said the strategic city of Carentan, guarding the base of the Cherbourg peninsula, had fallen to U.S. forces.

U.S. forces in the Forest of Cerisy region also are thrusting toward the key road junction town of St. Lo, less than nine miles southwest of the forest.

Supreme headquarters said further gains were made around Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg.

A Berlin Trans-Ocean Agency broadcast reported seaborne forces had landed at St. Vaast la Hague, 15 miles east of Cherbourg port.

In the widening hole in the centre of the beachhead to the southeast, Berlin said British and Canadian formations were concentrating in the Balleury area, 12 miles inland, flanking Cerisy Forest to the east.

Headquarters said the German command had been forced to throw in reserves piecemeal, sniping potential strength from anticipated major counterattack.

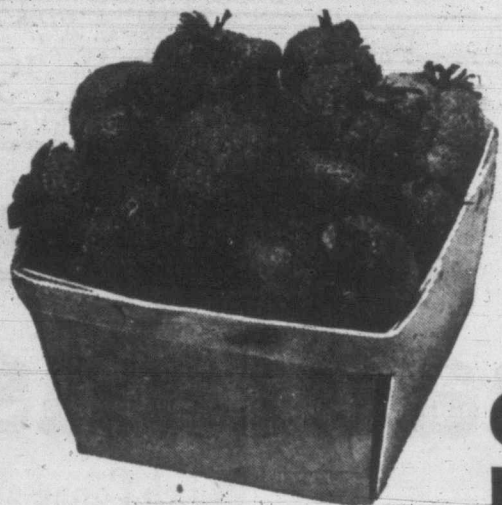

Only a "very slight" disturbance was recorded on the seismograph at the Astrophysical Observatory.

ard L. Peterson of Calgary, was charged with manslaughter when he appeared before Magistrate R. E. Graham.

2,300 'Separatists' Seized By Gestapo

STOCKHOLM, (ONA Cable)—The Gestapo has arrested 2,300 alleged "separatists" in the province of Hanover, it was reliably learned here today.

The arrests were said to be the opening gun in a drive to head off growing separatist movements throughout the Reich.

Those seized by the Gestapo include a number of priests, the deputy of the former Hanoverian party, owners of large estates and local officials. All were accused of being members of the Welfen, a political action group aiming to establish Hanover as a separate German state.

SOME OF the tradespeople, landlords and landladies around Sidney are annoyed. The pay of the R.A.F. brides has been delayed and pay of service families isn't such that they have built up reserves to meet emergencies. Some of the brides have been able to go to work to get money to tide them over. There are some unable to work. People of Sidney have been generous about extending credit but think a prospective two months without a pay cheque is a hardship the young women shouldn't be called upon to suffer under any circumstances... Canadians are banking more money despite income tax and purchase of war savings certificates. Savings deposits at the end of April were up approximately $28,000,000 over March to make the total $2,253,672,000.

POP BULLER of the Malahat Lookout whose pet deer have publicized Vancouver Island throughout Canada is kept busy on another humanitarian duty now. It is rescuing birds that get stuck on the tarred Malahat road. The other day he saw a hen pheasant and 10 chicks firmly fixed to the road by their wings which they had flapped in efforts to free themselves. Before a passing car could run over them he freed them all, wiped off as much of the tar as he could and let them go with the hope they would live. Hundreds of birds may be killed on the tarred roads he fears.

LABOR unions in England not only take an active part in electing members to the House of Commons. When their nominees are elected they pay them a retainer and apparently keep a close eye on their activities because one of them, W. A. Robinson, has been asked by the National Union of Distributive Workers to resign because of his inactivity... Supporting R. W. Mayhew's forecast that British Columbia lumber and mill products will find an extensive market in Britain after the war is the news from England that a third of Britain's rural population, about 2,000,000 people in all, live in houses where there is no water supply and none within easy reach. First move of the government for house improvement is to spend $35,000,000 to lead the huge prospective house-building program... It was mentioned during discussion of the house servant problem in the British House of Commons the other day that Emmanuel Shinwell, Labor M.P., referred to as a possible future prime minister, has to cook his own meals and make his own bed. In a few days 80 women sought a job as his housekeeper... Daily paper headlines in the United States may reach the maximum of national pride to feature the part U.S. troops play in the war but a distinguished audience at a National Press Club dinner in Washington cheered Premier John Curtin when he said that the bulk of MacArthur's forces in the New Guinea campaign were Australian.

Majority in U.S. Think Germany Plans Third War

By AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

PRINCETON, N.J. — The majority of Americans today do not regard the present conflict as a war that will end all wars—unless something very definite is done about Germany.

They, like the greater number in Britain and Australia, incline to take a very sober view toward the chances of permanent peace after this war unless Germany is effectively handicapped. They are inclined to look upon the problem of world peace as a continuing problem. To some observers, this frame of mind on the part of the public will be a better augury of world peace than one of unrealistic illusion.

This attitude possibly explains why no such slogan as, "was used in the last war—the war to end wars"—has risen in this war.

A reflection of U.S. public thinking on the question of world peace today is to be found in the results of a survey in which voters in all 48 states were asked: "As soon as Germany is defeated, do you think she will start making plans for another world war?"

The replies: Yes 60 per cent,

No 21 per cent. Undecided, 19 per cent.

Thus, even as the continental invasion moves forward against Nazi Germany, the majority of Americans are convinced that Germany, unless something is done about her, will begin to plan for another world war as soon as she is defeated.

Significantly, thinking in Australia and Britain runs along the same lines as that in United States, although measured by different questions. In Australia, when asked if they thought there would be another world conflict within 25 years, the dominant group said "Yes." The actual vote, as tabulated by the Australian Institute of Public Opinion was: Yes 42 per cent. No 34 per cent. No opinion 24 per cent.

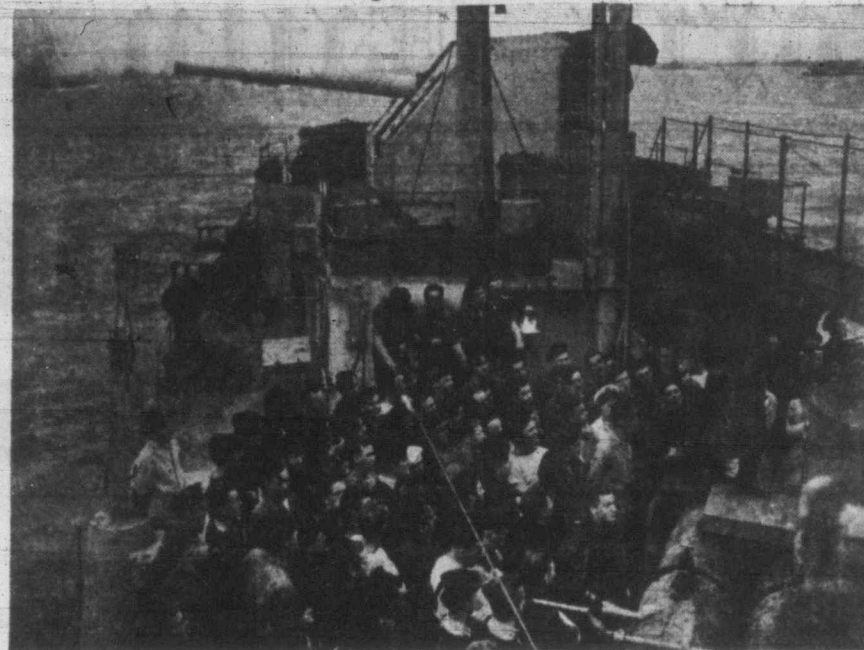

Back in 1942, in a survey asking what they thought Britain's attitude toward Germany should be after the war, virtually one half of those questioned by the British Institute of Public Opinion gave replies indicating the necessity of preventing Germany from starting war again at some future time.

2 Jailbreakers At Toronto Face Charge of Murder

TORONTO (CP)—T. M. Goulay, Ontario Inspector of Prisons, today began a thorough investigation of the slaying of Robert Henry Canning, 49-year-old jail guard at Toronto's Don Jail Saturday night.

Charged with the murder are Allan M. Baldwin, 32, and William Joseph O'Sullivan, 34.

Baldwin, who escaped from jail after the slaying, was recaptured by a posse of more than 200 police Sunday night hiding under a bridge over the Humber River just west of Toronto, but O'Sullivan was arrested in the jail shortly after the discovery of Canning's body.

O'Sullivan, who was convicted and sentenced to four years in the penitentiary on a charge of armed robbery, was being held in the Don Jail pending his transfer to the Kingston penitentiary. He was scheduled to appear in court today.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Baldwin, sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary for his part in $34,000 robbery of the Royal Bank of Canada branch at Wheatley, Ont., last September, and an additional four years for receiving stolen goods, was taken to hospital after his arrest for treatment of a right forearm fracture suffered in his escape from the jail.

Arrested an hour after the recapture of Baldwin, were Harry Hedderson, 34, and Steve Bahry, 25, on charges of aiding a prisoner to escape. They were taken into custody after a struggle with police. Arrested with them was Vernon Lacroix, who is charged with escaping from the Galt Jail in 1940.

Police said Canning was repeatedly struck over the head with a metal pipe and then strangled. The attack took place in view of seven other inmates of the hospital, who, police said, were threatened with a long knife by Baldwin and ordered to lie on their beds.

A pool of blood trailed across the floor as the dying guard apparently attempted to reach the alarm buzzer.

In Saskatchewan C.C.F. Forgets 'Whole-Hog' Socialism

Liberal Chieftain In Saskatchewan Confident of Win

REGINA (CP)—Premier W. J. Patterson has left for his own constituency of Cannington in southeastern Saskatchewan to wind up his Saskatchewan election campaign with a series of seven meetings.

Though he would make no prediction on the outcome of the June 15 voting, Mr. Patterson was confident.

In an address at Langenberg Saturday in support of Don McKenzie, Liberal nominee for Saltcoats, the premier said "I don't want to live in Saskatchewan unless farmers and business people can get a reasonable profit for their activities and investment."

Mr. Patterson said his government would not waste public funds, drilling for gas, oil or other resources, as the C.C.F. had advocated. When private industry succeeded in locating natural resources the government benefited from royalties, he said.

The major issue before the voters was whether the people wanted to keep on running their own affairs or wanted to turn over their business to a government that would run everything.

At Watrous, J. G. Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Lake Centre and former provincial Conservative leader, said in an address the C.C.F. changed its policies to suit the people in each province.

He was one of several speakers in central and northern areas of the province Saturday. Candidates today started the final three days of the campaign.

SECURITY NEEDED

Mr. Diefenbaker said security was needed, but it should be given without sacrificing freedom. He spoke in support of Hugh Smith, Progressive Conservative candidate in Watrous.

Rev. T. C. Douglas, provincial C.C.F. leader, told an Estevan audience that electors "are either voting to go back to the old dog eat dog system or go forward to build a new society based on human needs." He predicted a landslide for his party.

At an open air meeting at North Battleford, Progressive Conservative spokesmen said they had received a cable from Wing Cmdr. R. W. (Buck) Nair, now overseas, stating he was pleased at being nominated to contest the Battlefords riding for the Progressive Conservative Party.

"Am sure electors will understand I can be of more value to our country by carrying on here at this critical time," he cabled. Rupert D. Ramsay, provincial Progressive Conservative leader, said that by making more efficient use of its present good revenues, Saskatchewan should be able to get along without the education tax, now levied on most goods purchased.

At Moose Jaw, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. national leader, predicted the party would get at least 40 of the 52 seats in the Legislature.

He said that a federal government health bill, which people heard had been introduced at Ottawa but which in fact did not exist, was either "a serious error" or "a political swindle."

He said Pensions Minister MacKenzie had stated a draft bill had been prepared by officials, but it had not been introduced in the House although it bore a notation saying it had been given first reading in March.

At Radisson, Ernest Wilson, Progressive Conservative candidate for Redberry, said the C.C.F. was trying to stir up racial antagonisms in the constituency, where a large proportion of the people were from continental Europe.

Nominations of candidates were completed Saturday with three chosen in the northern riding of Cumberland, where voting has been deferred till June 24. Candidates now in the field number 153. Three soldier candidates will be elected later by Saskatchewan voters in the forces on service outside provincial boundaries.

British Forces Use Huge New Glider

LONDON (CP)—Britain disclosed Sunday night that a "secret weapon" used in the Normandy landings was a huge new glider called the Hamilcar.

With a wingspread greater than that of a Lancaster four-engine bomber, the Hamilcar must be towed by a heavy bomber, but can land in a small field. It can—and did—carry a light tank.

One of the first tanks to be landed in France silenced within two minutes a German gunpost which had been causing heavy casualties among Allied ground forces.

Another Hamilcar tank immediately blew the top off a tower in which German snipers were concealed.

Original Farmer-Labor Program Left Far Behind By Group Today

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

REGINA—The retreat from pure socialism in Saskatchewan is shown not only in the recent utterances of party leaders, but in the printed documents of the C.C.F. movement. On Jan. 7 and Feb. 11, 1933, the Farmer-Labor Group defined the program on which it contested the provincial election of 1934. The Farmer-Labor Group was the foundation on which the C.C.F. was later built and its handbook for speakers carries the letters C.C.F. in bold type on its cover. This document outlines the original beliefs of the C.C.F. movement and shows it to have been a movement of almost unadulterated whole-hog socialism, including the progressive socialization of farm land.

FORGOTTEN DOCTRINES

In the present Saskatchewan campaign a great part of this doctrine has been dropped, simply forgotten—including the basic 1933 theory that a farmer should not own but should lease his land from the government. If the C.C.F. were appealing to Saskatchewan now on the 1933 platform of the Farmer-Labor Group, it would compel a referendum on socialism. It is not doing so. Whatever the vote next Thursday, it will not be a verdict on socialism, which is sponsored by the C.C.F. in city areas, but not among farmers.

The abandonment of the more radical theories of 1933 in the light of the prairie electors' views is indicated rather dramatically by a plank in the old platform which said a Farmer-Labor government would immediately appoint a planning board to rebuild the economy of Saskatchewan and for its chairman "might select a man of the calibre of G. D. H. Cole, an economic expert who would understand the results of economic actions."

NOT MENTIONED NOW

Mr. Cole, of course, is the English left-wing economist who insists publicly that socialism must be established by some form of dictatorship and cannot be established successfully under our present parliamentary system. Mr. Cole is never mentioned in Saskatchewan today. When his name has been brought up by critics of the C.C.F. in the last year or two, the C.C.F. has been quick to dissociate itself from his teachings. He was evidently the idol of the C.C.F. movement in 1933.

The C.C.F. has been compelled in the present campaign to make a complete reversal of its position of 1933 on foreign trade policy. For purposes of eastern urban consumption, the C.C.F. advocated a system of virtual self-containment for Canada in its 1933 handbook, "Make This Your Canada." To satisfy the western farmer, Mr. Coldwell quickly announced he was in favor of larger foreign trade, thus repudiating the central theory of the handbook which he had endorsed.

OUTRIGHT REJECTION

This is a flat rejection of the platform of the Farmer-Labor Group, which insisted in 1933 that "it would be perfectly feasible in this province (Saskatchewan) to set up an economic unit in the Dominion of Canada to supply ourselves with almost everything we require." The Farmer-Labor Group stood not merely for the self-containment of Canada inside the world (as the C.C.F. national plan really proposes today) but for the self-containment of Saskatchewan inside Canada.

The 1933 platform called directly for the "barter" of Canadian exports for such imports as tea, which Canada cannot produce. The present C.C.F. program would depend on barter, through the management of state trading boards, but the word is not used any more. It smells of the German system which, so far as foreign trade goes, is the same system advocated by the C.C.F.

NO SOCIALISM NOW

Again, the 1933 handbook asks itself the question, "Does this political party consider that this objective, so stated, gives us a mandate to bring into operation Socialism if elected?" The handbook answers the question with the simple affirmative, "yes." In 1933 the Farmer-Labor group was a purely Socialist Party. The C.C.F. is not talking Socialism in any sense in Saskatchewan now.

In 1933 the original C.C.F. movement proposed to pay for government public works by the issuance of provincial scrip in place of money. Nothing is heard of this any more since Mr. Aberhart's experiment.

THEY INCLUDED ALL INDUSTRIES

When it comes to the socialization of industry, the 1933 platform leaves no private initiative at all. It demands "social ownership" of all resources and the machinery of wealth production. This, therefore, includes all industries. Now the C.C.F., with great variation of detail, says it would leave some private industry in operation.

In relation to land, the 1933 platform says that farms should not be held under the present outright private or Torrens title, but on a lease from the government, valid only so long as the occupant uses the land. The government would not force a man to surrender a title but would invite him voluntarily to do so. He could refuse. But the state would say how much land he could hold. "We cannot definitely state," says the platform, "how much land a man would be allowed to hold, but it will give him a good standard of living."

SIX-HOUR DAY?

A man who leased land could will the lease to his son after him. If a man cannot pay his mortgage, the state will pay it for him, but will then take his land and hand it back on a lease. He will retain the lease only so long as he uses the land. If he leaves it he can sell the improvements he has made to the next leaseholder. Finally the 1933 platform promises that "under a planned economy it will not be necessary for the farmer to work more than six hours a day."

In the present campaign the C.C.F. never mentions its old plan to socialize the land and allow it to be held on lease. It says it will leave the farmer absolutely alone. And it does not promise him a six-hour day either.

Junior Chamber Urges New Measures Prevent Delinquency

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Delegates to the week-end conference here of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce were en route home today carrying plans aimed at solution of the juvenile delinquency problem and promotion of Canadianism, youth leadership and international goodwill.

The convention adopted a resolution urging the federal government to "devise and embark upon a realistic program" of delinquency prevention and heard George A. Dobbie of Galt, Ont., declare in an address that one of the primary aims of the chamber was to bring about full appreciation of the responsibilities of Canadian citizenship.

The delinquency resolution suggests provision be made to reinforce national and local anti-delinquency services such as recreational facilities, child guidance clinics, improved housing and city planning and public and high school instruction in human relations.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Mr. Dobbie, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said if there was ever a time when full appreciation of the responsibilities of citizenship was needed, it was now.

"It is my judgment that we cannot possibly aspire to national greatness, nor indeed can we even hope to improve our lot by shifting responsibilities to those of our own shoulders to those of any group or government."

As yet, he said, there had not been developed any formula for success which did not contain as necessary ingredients the qualities of thrift, industry, individual initiative and enterprise and the accepting of responsibility.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce believed in and supported an economic system which allowed to individual effort and initiative the greatest possible freedom within the limits of national welfare, he said.

Individual freedom and the rights of young men to climb to "dizzy heights" should be closely safeguarded, Mr. Dobbie said.

IMAGINATION NEEDED

Munitions Minister Howe urged delegates to use imagination in postwar thinking and to avoid falling back on unemployment remedies of prewar years.

If Canada can continue to expand its economy, there will be no unemployment in postwar years, he said.

He said the task of preparing the way for return to civilian life of sailors, soldiers and airmen "must have an important place" in deliberations of the convention.

Walter G. Attridge of Montreal was named president of the Junior Chamber, succeeding W. P. Reid of Calgary. Vice-presidents elected are A. T. Silverthorne, Winnipeg; Paul Laframboise, Quebec City; G. Mort Ferguson, Vancouver; Harold Lackie,

Occupation Cost Over Two Billion

WASHINGTON (Special)—The German occupation of Norway has cost that country more than $2,000,000,000, it is estimated in a booklet issued by the Royal Norwegian Information Service today in commemoration of the fourth anniversary of the last cabinet meeting held by King Haakon's government on Norwegian soil.

My May, 1943, the booklet reveals, the "Wehrmacht-account" at the Bank of Norway, from which the Germans draw to pay their occupation costs, was $1,600,000,000, and it was "rising steadily at the rate of $18,000,000 a month."

At least 25,000 Norwegians have been arrested for political "crimes" in the four years of occupation, with 227 executions publicly admitted by the Germans through March 4 of this year, the booklet also discloses.

Estimating that 98 per cent of the population of nearly 3,000,000 Norwegians are participating in the resistance movement, the booklet—entitled "Norway, a Fighting Ally"—cites outstanding examples of the resistance, including sabotage of labor mobilization, church opposition to the Quisling authorities and underground activities.

It reports a drop in the living standard of Norwegians approximately 40 to 45 per cent since 1939, with new and more rigorous hardships imposed upon them as the German position weakens.

New World Markets for Canadian Nickel
Made Plant Expansion Necessary

When the Canadian Nickel industry was faced with the loss of ninety per cent of its markets at the close of the first World War, the men who managed this industry set themselves resolutely to the task of finding new peacetime markets for Canadian Nickel.

By intensive research, new Nickel alloys were developed for specific uses. A corps of engineers was employed to demonstrate to peacetime industries throughout the world the superiority of Nickel alloys for scores of uses.

Step by step, new markets were built up. By 1926 the demand for Canadian Nickel had increased to such an extent that work was commenced on the construction of great new plants in Canada.

Between 1926 and 1930 the Canadian Nickel industry paid out fifty millions of dollars for Canadian labor and materials. Expansion has continued up to the present.

Today Canadian Nickel is again devoted to war purposes and again the industry looks to the future with confidence. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets, so that the Nickel industry may continue, through its own initiative and enterprise, to make still greater contributions to Canada's welfare.

HIS FOUR FRONTS

AMONG MUCH THAT WAS FANTASTIC, ungrammatical, and diabolical in "Mein Kampf," Adolf Hitler explained a part of his philosophy which sought to show that he had absorbed one of the basic lessons of his country's military history. He never intended the Reich of his fashioning to be caught between the fires of two fronts. Such folly had to be avoided like the plague. And for a considerable period of the present conflict he actually succeeded in his policy of divide and conquer. One by one the proud, happy, independent sovereign states of continental Europe succumbed to the apparent invincibility of the Wehrmacht. The rest is history of too recent a date to require special mention here.

In this month four years ago, however, the Fuehrer of all the Germans had to make the greatest decision of his career. He fumbled; after the Battle of Britain in the air he allowed the allure of Bismarck's "Drang nach Osten" program to induce him to take a southeastern view of future military potentialities. His mentor in Rome looked like a good bet to Hitler and his oligarchy in Berlin. With the Mediterranean under Axis control, the north African land mass could become a bridge to the oil and mineral wealth of the Middle East, and the bright jewel of India beckoned in the distance. All that, too, is well-known history. With the Italian dictator, nevertheless, the senior partner in the Rome-Berlin Axis had opened his second front; to the limbo had gone the categorical teaching of "Mein Kampf."

Not content with the two clearly-defined battle lines—the one in the west and the other in the Balkans and north Africa, the Fuehrer must needs follow them up with a third a year later; this month in the summer of 1941, he sent his legions crashing over the Russian border. The third front assuredly would soon present him with territorial gains, with an incalculable store of material resources with whose possession he could laugh at Britain's naval blockade. So did he calculate. Little did he know then how far wrong were all the so-called military experts in his own and other lands who were quite sure his conquests to that date were ample warranty for this new venture. He soon learned what the valiant Russian people had in pickle for him. The armies of the Reich are now nearing the point from which they started almost three years ago.

Not only two fronts puzzle Hitler today; he has four of them to worry him—and how they are worrying him! It is this condition which brings hope and confidence to the peoples of all the United Nations, the enslaved and fettered as well as the free. Four years after the dastardly Italian attack on France, therefore, the blows are falling on the armies of the Reich from the west, the east, the south and the north. The renewed campaign against the Finns, which Marshal Stalin officially confirmed yesterday, underscores the active military encirclement of the common enemy of mankind. And, of course, the other front—the front the creator of the Luftwaffe thought was too insignificant to require but perfunctory consideration—was really Adolf's second front from the outset.

The news dispatches graphically describe the progress of the war on these five fronts. The battle for the Cherbourg Peninsula is going well; new landings may soon follow. The Battle of Russia is drawing to a close; the pro-German Finns may soon have the full bill for their alliance with Hitler. The section of the Wehrmacht employed in Italy is giving a performance which its counterpart has presented in the Soviet Union in the last year; Field Marshal Kesselring is giving his own version of "detaching" manoeuvres. And the air front everywhere is growing in activity from day to day. Verily is another book-burning due in the Reich.

THE PETRILLO SAGA

THIS IS ANOTHER CHAPTER IN THE breath-taking saga of James Caesar Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians. Mr. Petrillo, as most people know by now, is mindful of his own: Year in and year out, in spite of war and manpower needs, he has been busy dreaming up new and fascinating fields of employment for dues-paying practitioners of the tonal art. His zeal has occasionally embroiled him with stubborn people insensitive of his lofty esthetic purposes, but he always wins. Today, unless one happens to run into an impromptu barroom tenor, a note of non-union music in public is seldom heard.

It seemed that when Mr. Petrillo succeeded in getting an unpaid and unsponsored symphony orchestra of high school children put on the air, he had removed all dangerous competition. But there still remained one serious rivalry which now threatens a strike in two major networks. The new trouble hinges on this delicate point: Is the arduous feat of placing music recordings on a turntable an engineering or musical operation? Mr. Petrillo contends that as long as there is music on the records, the handling of them comes within his union's field. He got the networks to agree with him (they long ago discovered that it is futile not to). They signed contracts to hire trained, sensitive, dues-paying musicians for this delicate and taxing work at a mere $12 a day! But the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians feels that perhaps a man with a degree from M.I.T. or Purdue can put on and take off records, and even place the needle in the right groove as part of their regular work and at no extra charge. They are being a bit stubborn about it. They threaten to walk out if a long-hair from the A.F.M. so much as lays an irreverent hand on a recorded singing commercial. And there the matter rests at the moment. Our sympathies are with the engineers. But, since one cannot ignore past performances, most money will be on Mr. Petrillo.

Most of all, however, we are intrigued with the future possibilities for the musician that the latest Petrillo contention opens up. If a wax disc containing grooves which under certain conditions give off musical vibrations should be handled only by a member of the musicians' union, then the musicians' postwar employment problems are solved. The piano mover will have to hold an A.F.M. card. A union musician will have to ride on every moving van to handle the family radio and Junior's fiddle. The boys and girls who sell radios, phonographs, records, instruments and sheet music will have to join up. And you will not catch us touching our portable radio until Mr. Petrillo has passed upon our fitness and accepted our initiation fee.

STRAIGHT TALK IN MOSCOW

SOVIET TRADE LEADERS IN MOSCOW the other day listened to some plain talk from Mr. Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who is the first American civilian to be honored with a special invitation from Marshal Stalin to visit the country. And shortly before he left Washington on his important journey last month, Mr. Johnston told this writer that he had been happy to accept the invitation on the understanding that he would be permitted to say what he felt like saying and to see all that was necessary for the purpose he had in mind. He would, naturally be barred from prying into matters of a secret military nature.

The speech which Mr. Johnston delivered last week, probably the frankest and most provocative ever heard in Moscow from a private individual, was the main attraction at a luncheon given by Mr. Anastas I. Mikoyan, Soviet Trade Commissar, and its keynote was an appeal to Russians and Americans to reconcile themselves to different economic systems, intimating:

"In economic ideology, the practice of my country is different from yours. You are states-minded, collective-minded. We are more private-minded, most individual-minded and, gentlemen, make no mistake, we are determined to remain so or even to become more so."

Mr. Johnston asked his audience to realize "how completely our American Communists have been wasting their time," and explained that in a recent poll in the United States most organized workers answering a question as to their social standing had replied "middle class." Here is the typical Johnston touch by way of elaboration:

"So perhaps in a way you cannot blame our American Communists for their failure. If I may put it frankly, how can they make a proletarian revolution among workers who do not even know they are proletarians? Our American Communists haven't caught on to this fact. They still follow and imitate what they think is your current policy. If you take pepper, they sneeze. If you have indignation, they belch. They annoy our trade unions much more than they annoy our employers. I think each of our two countries should be allowed to pursue its own economic experiment, unimpeded by the other."

Some Canadians as well as those with a similar "intellectual strain" in the United States will bristle at Mr. Johnston's method of revealing the pose with which we are familiar. Many such "fellow travelers" would still regard the Soviet Union as a democracy—even if Marshal Stalin explicitly explained that it could not be so called. What the President of the United States Chamber of Commerce inferred, of course, was that Russian raw materials and American machines have no ideologies. And the plainer the speech from leaders of public thought in the United Nations, the greater the prospect of the right type of understanding after the war; and on that the world depends for an enduring peace. This is the goal of the Russian people.

WARTIME TRAVEL

THIS IS THE FOURTH SUMMER THAT the public has been asked not to travel during their vacations. And this year the request is more than ever serious and necessary. Traffic incidental to the nation's war effort is still extremely heavy. And soon, unfortunately, there will be a two-way traffic when casualties start coming back to hospitals and homes from overseas.

Perhaps more immediately impressive than figures are the promises of discomfort. A large proportion of the country's Pullmans and its coaches are in full wartime service. The rest are carrying a peak load. So if you plan to go vacationing by train you can confidently expect some or all of the following experiences: You will have to wait for accommodation; there may be a scarcity of air-conditioned cars; you will wait for dining car meals—if you get them; you may have to carry your own baggage; your train will likely be late. Think it over and you may agree that, for a wartime vacation, there is no place like home.

Intriguing is the story of the man whose income tax showed that he owed no tax and who sent the income tax office a money order for $100.00. Trying to fathom his reasoning, we have discarded timidity, practical joking and relief, and have concluded that here is a man of patriotism and impeccable civic conscience trying to say he has but one life to give to his country and $100.00 to its treasury.

Bruce Hutchison

WILL AMERICANS TRADE?

IT IS AN AXIOM of international politics, well proved by the events of the last 20 years, that the peace of the world cannot be maintained without the active co-operation of the United States. It is equally axiomatic that the prosperity of the world requires the prosperity of the United States and its full participation in international trade. Economically then, apart from political decisions, the great question before the world boils down into something very simple: Will the United States reduce its tariffs and trade?

That question will not be answered by the speeches of statesmen or the resolutions of chambers of commerce. It will be answered only by the final action of the U.S. Congress on the details of the tariff laws. The answer cannot be foreseen fully yet and meanwhile it is possible only to examine the facts of the United States' former position in the world's trade in the hope of judging its future position.

In 1937 the United States did a total foreign business of $10,000,000,000, including all international payments of every sort moving in and out of the country. This was a small trade for such a nation, about twice Canada's present trade. In goods the United States imported only $3,000,000,000 and it exported $3.3 billions. Canada is exporting and importing about half these amounts now. Last year the United States continued to import at its prewar level, about $3,000,000,000, but it exported $12.5 billions, all but $2.5 billions by lend-lease. With such gigantic exports, the United States present boom obviously has a heavy stake in world trade.

HOW BIG WILL its trade be after the war? The editors of Fortune, basing their calculations on official government figures, estimate that if the United States can maintain international prosperity and aid raise its national income somewhat above its present total, it could easily have a total trade of $14,000,000,000, about twice the prewar total. Of this, merchandise imports would be $4.3 billions as against the prewar figure of $3,000,000,000. These are highly conservative figures based on the assumption that the United States will make many things, including rubber, which it imported entirely before the war. With Russia and China being rebuilt, total U.S. trade could be much larger than these figures suggest.

These are the basic facts against which Congress must decide the nation's future tariff policy. It must also consider another fact when it is asked to protect the nation's high standard of living by raising high tariffs—namely, as Fortune points out, that the manufacturing industries of the United States before the war had an output per man nearly twice as large as that of the other two industrial giants, Britain and Germany. High American wages and living are not the result of tariffs but of efficiency. The high-wage industries like automobile manufacturing have never had trouble holding their own in the open world market.

AS FORTUNE SAYS:

"It is perfectly true, of course, that a sudden reduction of tariffs causes unemployment and the need for readjustment. But it is also true that with every tariff reduction consumers have that much more to spend on other products. If these products come from abroad, and imports increase, then there will be a rise of employment in the export industries (since foreign nations, able to get United States dollars, will buy United States goods). If the consumer uses his additional money on home-produced goods, there will be a comparable increase in employment in these industries."

The question is whether Congress understands these facts and is willing to apply them against the great high-tariff pressure groups, not only manufacturers but the farm bloc, which at present is enjoying a prosperity virtually guaranteed by the public treasury. In that question the world has a vital interest and no part of it more than Canada. The economic world waits on the answer and cannot shape its future until the answer is given. For should the United States attempt economic isolationism, should it revert to the era of Fordney-McCumber and Smoot-Hawley, the bottom would be torn out of international trade as it was in the twenties and thirties.

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst
The battle of Cherbourg Peninsula continues to mount in fury as reinforcements grow on both sides, but we have the gratifying assurance from Gen. Montgomery that "the Allied armies have secured a firm and good lodgement on the mainland of France."

We mustn't assume from this that the Allies have passed the danger mark. The peak of the battle will come when Rommel throws in the main body of his armored strategic reserves for all-out counterattack. We should save our celebration until that assault has been dealt with, since it can be a nasty affair.

However, Rommel himself is in a mighty tight corner. His problem isn't that of dealing with the Cherbourg Peninsula alone, but of guarding the entire coastline of western Europe and southern France. If he sends great strength against the peninsula, he lays himself open to Allied amphibious invasions at numerous other strategic points. He might handle one, but he can't deal with all of them satisfactorily at the same time.

Still, he has no choice but to defend the peninsula to the best of his ability. This great battle is one of the crucial engagements of the war, for while Rommel couldn't prevent the Allies from establishing a second front by defeating them at Cherbourg, yet he might delay our ultimate success greatly.

So we must expect the Nazis to attack in force in the immediate future and try to drive the Allies back into the sea. One of our most powerful weapons against this assault will be our vast superiority in the air. Another tower of strength rests in Allied warships lying off Cherbourg.

FALSE DAWN?

From Kitchener Record
"Already I see in the skies the rosy dawn of a new and prosperous era," asserts a columnist. We hope he's not looking at the reflection caused by the world being on fire.

THIS WAR—FOUR YEARS AGO June 12, 1940—German troops crossed the Marne at Chateau Thierry; others drove to within 20 miles of centre of Paris. Japanese bombing raid on Chungking caused 1,500 casualties. Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Reynaud and Gen. Weygand, concluded their French conference.

Husbands think about it!

Make no mistake—husbands often think about coffee. They, too, remember the lesson that coffee rationing proved to be so true:

To make sure of full satisfaction in every cup, you must use really good coffee.

To be absolutely sure of really good coffee, give your husband Maxwell House. It's a truly wonderful blend—full of the fragrant flavor and fine body that men look for in coffee. And here's why:

1. Maxwell House is blended from rare, extra-flavor coffees—the finest the world produces.
2. This finer blend is roasted by a remarkable process that roasts every single bean evenly all through.

Maxwell House is packed in a Wartime Bag, in an All Purpose Grind and at less cost to you.

Broiled Premium Ham

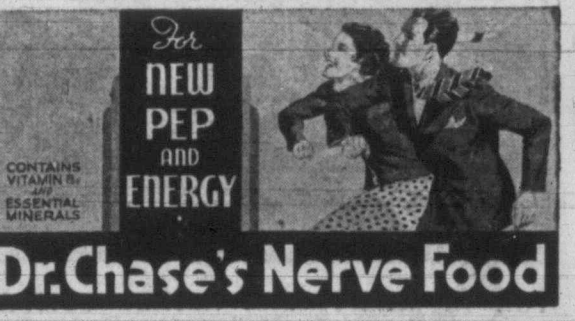

Now, that we can serve ham again, without depriving our friends overseas, let's try delicious Swift's Premium this quick and easy way.

Of course for a party or a big family dinner, nothing can beat a baked Premium Ham—whole or half. But for other, less formal occasions, or when you want the same delicious flavour without taking the time to bake a ham, ask your butcher for a slice or two from Swift's Premium ham; boned and rolled. Have the slices cut 1 inch thick; wipe with a damp cloth; score edge and broil. Allow 10 minutes a side.

NOTES ON BAKING SWIFT'S PREMIUM HAM
Never forget Swift's Premium Ham needs no par-boiling! To bake, wipe with damp cloth, place on rack in roasting pan, fat side up. Bake in 325 degree oven. For large hams allow 15 minutes a pound; for smaller hams (under 12 lbs.) 18 minutes; for half hams 22 minutes. When cooked, remove rind, score surface, cover with your favourite glaze and brown in hot oven, 400 degrees!

Letters to the Editor

THOSE EVACUEES
Marion J. Ord's letter in Times of June 5 is to be commended entitled "Evacuees Home Again," in which she writes that "the parents of the British children will feel a gratitude too deep for words" to the American people who were so kind to them.

Although among all nationalities there are always ungrateful people to others for services rendered, if more people were to write so kindly of other races like the said writer, and think on "whatsoever things are lovely" it would make it much easier to get along with all better.

VIDA O. OLIVER.
3115 Delta St., June 8.

INTUITION IN SIDNEY
It is too bad we can't be impersonal when criticizing events. I try to be but find it difficult to be even impartial. Your recent editorials show that you admire Mr. Churchill. My current reflections—however far they go—show that I don't. While I might think your implications are advisable or might not, I feel my judgment is right.

Your editorial, "Now They Know" may be implication; may be fact. In any case you don't know all there is to know about Mr. Churchill. Though God knows it is no secret. Winston Churchill to me as a boy was a hero, till I met him and found he was not that boy's idea of what a hero should be. In those days I didn't know the meaning of petulance or that it might have any cause.

Anyway, Winston Churchill was petulant and the cause, I intuitively felt, was ambition. In a recent speech broadcast to the world he stated that he had no further ambitions.

There was my intuition—as often wrong as right, by the way—proved right. Winston Spencer Churchill! The first man of the British Empire. For our world a laudable ambition. We now know there is another world where ambition leads to service, not reward.

You might wonder what all this has to do with Mr. Churchill's wanting or not wanting a second front. Just this: He feels—as Upton Close, the analyst says—what is the use of knocking Germany off top perch and putting Russia there? Churchill and Close think of Russia as Russia, not as a union of peoples.

Mr. Churchill does not, never did and never can want a union of peoples for the benefit of the people. History will shortly place Mr. Churchill. Meanwhile he thrives on criticism.

F. A. THORNTON.

Sidney.
(Editor's note: Well, if Mr. Churchill did not want a second front, he adopted a peculiar method to gratify his desire. But we have to admit being short on intuition since a certain ex-Austrian corporal cornered most of it. And Mr. Churchill is probably content to let the historian deal with him as he will.)

GREEK RELIEF
We wish to express our sincere appreciation and thanks for the co-operation and support of the citizens of Victoria and surrounding districts during the clothing campaign held recently for the stricken people of occupied Greece.

The response has been most gratifying and the people of Canada may be assured that the time and effort expended in this worthy cause will never be forgotten by the Greek people.

The garments and shoes totaling over 6,000 pieces, and which were in very good condition, have been shipped to the Canadian Red Cross Society, for account Greek War Relief Fund, Montreal, P.Q., where in turn they will be shipped to Greece for distribution.

ACCIDENT IN ESQUIMALT
It might be of interest to let the public know that on Thursday at about 8.30 in the morning a large army transport truck ran into two young school boys, standing on the boulevard near Lyall and Lamson Streets.

One boy died shortly afterwards, the other has since died.

While placing the blame on any one until a full investigation has been made would be unfair, but to think that up till 2 p.m. Friday not one person representing the army command, which is less than half a mile distant, had called on the bereaved and upset parents of either boy, and did so by phone only—under pressure. This is not only unfair but inhuman.

B. CALEY,
Chairman, Esquimalt Board of School Trustees.

CIVIL DEFENCE
Victoria Civil Defence District No. 11 will meet at the Margaret Jenkins School Tuesday, at 8. A review of the district's part in the Lower Vancouver Island test June 7 will be made.

STONE AGE INDIANS SOMETIMES USED LADDER AS STAIRWAYS

Much of the history of the ladder has been lost. We are likely to use ladders hundreds of times during our lives, but no one knows when they were used for the first time.

The first ladders are believed to have been made before anyone knew how to write. That seems to explain why no record was made about the start of this great invention. The earliest ladders must have been crude affairs. Very likely they were made from slender trees. Some of the branches of such a tree can be cut away, and other branches can be left in place, perhaps being cut short.

If a slender tree is cut, and the branches are trimmed in the right way, a ladder of a sort is made—with "rungs" on either side of the trunk. Present-day beekeepers often use ladders of that type, but the modern ones must be better than those of the Stone Age.

Indians in southwestern parts of the United States lived in the "Late Stone Age." They had ladders, as we know from records left by Spanish explorers. Coronado and his men watched those Indians climb ladders, and were amazed by their skill.

The Pueblo Indians, we are told, could climb the ladders as if they were stairways. They kept a perfect balance without holding the rungs with their hands. Coronado wrote:

"One of these Indian women can carry a jug of water up a ladder on her head, without touching it with either hand."

As I write these words, I have before me a picture which was made by an Egyptian artist about 4,000 years ago. It shows two ladders which were used by Egyptian soldiers while they were capturing a fort. The ladders look like those which are most commonly used today. They had straight sidepieces, with rungs between.

Wood is the common material for ladders. Yet we have some of light-weight metal, and in certain cases rope ladders are used. Firemen in many cities have "aerial" or "telescopic" ladders. Through the use of motor power, or of a hand crank, these ladders can be made to "grow" in length. With such a ladder a fireman can reach a window several stories from the ground.

In the Garden
Victoria Horticultural Society garden tips:
Plant late potatoes and transplant tomatoes—plough up sod land for next year's garden, in order to kill the sod—stake tomatoes and remove suckers—tomatoes and potatoes, too, respond to uniform treatment and recent periods of drought, followed by heavy watering—nip tops of broad beans to help control aphids. Water potatoes, particularly when the tuber growth is strongest, that is, when in flower. Hill up potatoes slightly, but do not disturb the roots.

Plant gladioli for late bloom: dahlias, too, may still be planted. Stake tall perennials—cut back nepeta and pyrethrum to obtain second bloom—keep pansies and violas picked to obtain continuity of bloom.

Mrs. Atherton Visits Blind Headquarters

Mrs. Ray Atherton, wife of the United States Minister to Canada, inspected the headquarters of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Toronto during the first official visit which Mr. and Mrs. Atherton paid to the Ontario capital.

Mrs. Atherton learned braille and became a voluntary transcriber when she lived in England some years ago, and since she has returned to the United States she has carried on work of a similar nature. She displayed great interest in the arrangements which have been made by the institute for the instruction of newly-blinded soldiers in the braille system.

In Victoria, civilians who are partially sighted or have lost their sight completely learn to read by touch in their own homes. Through the Canadian National Institute for the Blind a variety of books is supplied to them, also playing cards marked in braille or moon type. Some who have leisure time on their hands enjoy a game of checkers or dominoes which are especially constructed to suit their needs.

Pray for Victory, Peace and Rome's Liberation

Kneeling on Heywood Avenue, saying prayers for victory are, left to right: Father Plant, Father Daniel Johnson and Father Maurus. Torch-bearers are in foreground.

Fifteen hundred men, women and children knelt in prayer before an altar of exposition on Heywood Avenue Sunday afternoon, as Roman Catholics throughout Victoria gathered for the annual Corpus Christi procession and benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, given by Bishop J. C. Cody.

The procession started from St. Ann's Academy to the outdoor altar before the Primary School, where prayers were offered for three special intentions—victory and peace with charity and justice; thanksgiving for the liberation of Rome, and safe return of relatives and friends in the armed forces.

Sisters of St. Ann, Christian Brothers from St. Louis College, school children and members of the various parish societies, participated in the procession which was headed by John Neary carrying the Union Jack.

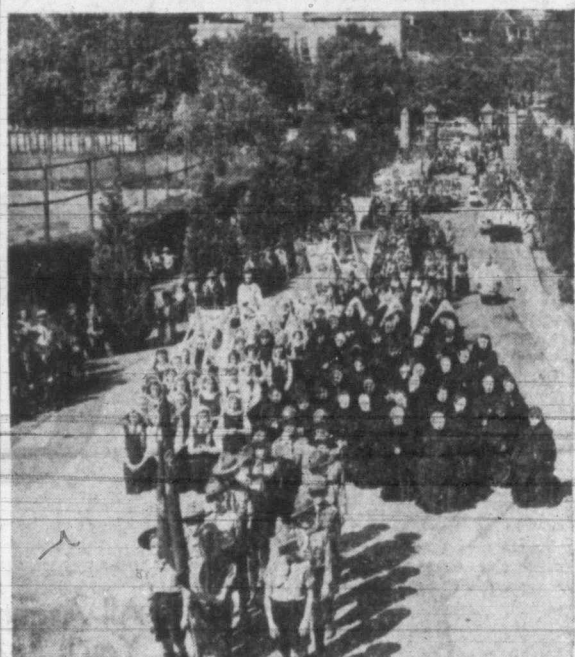

Also taking part in the procession were Junior and Senior Catholic Women's League, Altar Society, League of the Sacred Heart, Legion of Mary, Third Order of St. Francis, C.Y.O., Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society, delegations of Chinese and Indians, Sisters of the Holy Angels and Sisters of the Love of Jesus.

There was no sermon at the service as Bishop Cody spoke on the Feast of Corpus Christi at all masses, Sunday morning.

Chinese Y.W.C.A. Opens in Vancouver

First Chinese Y.W.C.A. in Canada has been opened in the heart of Vancouver's Chinatown with clubs for everyone from young Chinese schoolgirls to grandmothers. National Council Y.W.C.A. announced today. Chinese work at the main Vancouver Y.W.C.A. first began six years ago when Miss Laura Kwan, graduate of the Margaret Eaton School for Physical Education, joined the staff. Girls' and women's clubs were formed and before long the gym was thrown open to mixed groups for dancing, badminton and dramatics. However, it became apparent to Y.W.C.A. officials some time ago that the future of the work among their 200 or more Chinese members demanded a centre located in their own community. The new Chinese Y.W.C.A. is the result. For sports and other activities requiring more space than available in their own centre, Chinese Y.W.C.A. members will still be welcome to use the gym at the main Vancouver "Y."

WAR STIMULATES JEALOUSY

Considering that every wife represents her husband's taste in women, and that he picked her out from all the balance of her sex because she was his heart's desire, it would seem that wives should be practically immune to jealousy. For all women know that while they have to take what they can get in marriage, men can take their choice, and so when one gives up his bachelor freedom and undertakes the support of a woman it is because he wants her above everything else in the world.

And when you add to this the fact that a man's egotism throws a glamour about his wife because she is his wife, just as he feels that his gun or his automobile is superior to others of the same make, you would think that the least of the average wife's troubles would be the danger of losing her husband.

But such is not the case. Jealousy seems to descend like a curse on many wives the minute they leave the altar and thereafter they are Sister Annie on the watchtower, keeping tab on every female that crosses their husband's path. They may be married to men so unattractive that no other woman would have them on a bet, or to men who haven't a romantic bone in their bodies, or to men whose feet are too tired at night to wander from their own fireplaces. It doesn't matter. The wives can see a husband-snatcher in a grandma or a girl in a perambulator.

son will instruct at the respective pools.

Arrangements for clay modeling and junior carpentry were left in the hands of Mrs. T. Kay.

Major L. Bullock-Webster offered the assistance of the school and community drama department for the work, and Miss Dorothy Davies undertook dramatic work in the parks.

Following three weeks operation at Willows, the schedule will shift to Windsor Park for the remainder of the season.

Farmers Warned Not to Increase Poultry Flocks

B.C. poultry flocks have increased considerably in size and numbers in recent months, says a circular sent to farmers' institutes by the B.C. agricultural production committee of the agriculture department.

It is now estimated there are approximately 4,500,000 birds on B.C. farms and in suburban poultry premises. Value of eggs produced last year was $3,655,000 compared with $4,172,000 in 1940, but, says the circular "informed circles consider there is a possibility that marketing conditions may not remain as good as they have been during the last 18 months.

"For example, the federal department of agriculture has recently stated that sufficient egg supplies for Great Britain now appear to be assured without further expansion of poultry flocks. In this statement there is implied a warning that in the near future our poultry men should plan to produce from more efficient poultry flocks. The aim should be good poultry management, with high producing, vigorous, healthy flocks, rather than large flocks. We are doubtful of the wisdom of suburban and urban residents launching into the poultry industry on a large scale, in the face of well-supplied markets and with no assurance that egg prices will remain satisfactory or that feed prices will not advance."

Fire Chief Urges Smokers To Be Careful

Urgent appeals to the public to take special precautions with cigarettes and matches to reduce the number of grass fires were made today by Greater Victoria fire departments.

Alex Murnoe, Victoria fire chief, said that in view of the dryness of the grass and air the danger of cigarette butts starting a blaze was great. He asked smokers to be particularly careful in stamping out cigarette butts and making sure all matches thrown away were out.

During the weekend the city department attended several grass and beach fires which did no damage.

Saanich firemen Saturday afternoon withdrew equipment from the property of Gilbert Heal, Grant Road, where Friday they had laid 1,500 feet of hose and pumped thousands of gallons of water to extinguish a bush fire which swept over five acres.

At 3.40 this morning Saanich firemen attended a roof blaze at the home of Mrs. M. O'Connell, Glenford Avenue. Firemen reported the blaze, which burned part of the roof and wall of the house, caused only limited damage. Firemen attended for one hour.

Oak Bay firemen at 11.06 Sunday night extinguished a grass blaze at 607 Beach Drive.

High School Vacation To Start Next Week

Hundreds of Greater Victoria High School students next week will pack up their books for the start of the summer vacation which will last until Sept. 5. Elementary schools will close June 23.

Victoria High School students, outside of those writing university entrance examinations and senior matriculation tests, will be released on Tuesday. Oak Bay and Esquimalt students will follow the same schedule, while Saanich students not writing examinations will be released by next Friday.

Those writing examinations will be released from school as soon as the tests have been completed.

Why Do We Export Goods?

Because Canada is one of the least self-sufficient countries in the world, her prosperity and her very existence depend on making the most of her own specialized resources and on trading them as advantageously as possible for her other requirements.

Report of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations, 1940.

● There is the answer in a nutshell—as worded by Canada's leading economists.

It was true in the old days of the fur trade. It is just as true to-day, when our exportable surplus includes many raw and manufactured products.

With our export trade the largest in our history, more people have jobs than ever before and our national income has reached a new peak.

Our post-war task is to maintain for constructive purposes the export trade which war has carried to such high levels.

The Dominion Bank, one of the Chartered Banks of Canada, will continue to give its full assistance to the furtherance of Canada's export trade.

JUST HOW expensive this horse racing business can be even though one owns good stock was never better demonstrated than by Jack Diamond's experience with his stable at Woodbine track in Ontario in recent weeks. The Vancouver owner, who has really laid a lot of cash on the line in his efforts to build up a top-notch racing string, shipped Franworth, Saffworth and Nancesworth east for the Ontario racing, and they wound up without even a third to their credit. So you can figure for yourself just how much the butter and egg man is out of pocket on that campaign. Diamond will race his string the first week of the B.C. racing at Lansdowne then send his runners to Longacres. Diamond wants no more of that half-mile Hastings strip.

ALTHOUGH Diamond experienced bad racing fortune at Woodbine, another well-known and popular British Columbia owner, "Doc" Appleby did right well for himself. Appleby's bang-tails came up with three wins and a third to pick off $2,200 in purse money. Most important of all was the return to running form of Magnot Line. A notorious bleeder after that smashing victory in the Manitoba Derby at Winnipeg two years ago, the horse has finally responded to treatment and seems set for a good season.

NOTICE where Bob Gelletly, operator of the Midlothian Stable, and one of the best-known owners in the province, has turned down a $4,000 cash offer for Dalkeith, well-known handicap performer. Gelletly further states the mare is not for sale at any price and will be pensioned off to his farm when her racing days are over. The same United States syndicate offered around $6,000 for Hi Rhythm and Romico and again met the cold shoulder. Looks like they must be hard put to get top-notch runners for the forthcoming meeting at the Longacres strip in Washington.

NEITHER rough, nor bunkers nor sand traps hold any terrors for golfers who master the use of that handy club, the dynamiter, says Tommy Armour, one of the world's foremost golf instructors and pros, in a recent article in Esquire. In the hands of an amateur it's as dangerous as dynamite; but in the hands of a professional, it's as powerful as dynamite, says Thomas.

THE DYNAMITER has undoubtedly become the most important weapon in the professional's bag, according to Armour, and all approach work is being played with these clubs. Before this club was invented it was absolutely necessary for a first-class player to hit 15 or more greens in par during the round to do a good score. The second shots had to hit the greens. Now it doesn't matter. The fellows stand up and hit these shots fearlessly—and what do they care if they go in the bunker or in the rough? They merely take out their dynamiter and flip the ball to within a few feet of the hole.

IS IT a fair club? Of course, it's fair, but it has certainly done something to the game, says Armour. It has done something to the science that has always surrounded the game of golf; the ability to control the ball and win under all conditions has gradually disappeared. The days of the left-to-right shot, the cut shot, the high shots and the low shots, the backspin shot, the pitch-and-run, have gone. It's merely a matter of taking a weapon which you think will propel the ball the required distance, grooving your swing and letting go. If the results are not satisfactory, concludes Armour, the dynamiter is still in your bag. You have no fear of penalties. The days of playing clever safe shots are gone.

Five C's, R.C.N. Win Cricket Games

Five C's and Royal Canadian Navy scored victories in Saturday's league cricket matches, the former turning back the Albions for their first triumph of the season 171 to 101 while the R.C.N. defeated Royal Navy 143 to 51. Feature of the fixtures was the batting of Chipman for the R.C.N. and George Payne for the C's. The former just missed his third century in as many matches with 94, while Payne put on a smart 84.

On the bowling side of the ledger Bell-Irving starred for the R.C.N. by capturing five wickets for 15 runs. His teammate Fox took four for 25, Jack and George Payne shared the bowling honors for the C's the former with four wickets for 35 runs and George with three for 25.

V.M.D.-R.C.A.F. Win Baseball

Duffy-Barnswell Star

With left fielder Maurice Duffy and third sacker Barney Barnswell literally clouting the cover off the ball, to gather in seven hits between them, including a triple and two doubles, Victoria Machinery Depot defeated the Eagles 4 to 1, Saturday night, to bolster their position at the top of the ball league. In the afternoon game the R.C.A.F. Flyers marked up their third straight triumph at the expense of the Army, 6 to 4. The airmen now rest in third position.

Tonight at 6.30 the Flyers will put their string on the block when they stack up against the V.M.D. It is expected the shipbuilders will throw their speedball hurler, Tommy Musgrave, against the airmen.

Although the V.M.D. had anything but a good night in the field with six errors charged against them, they certainly hit in the clutch. On the other hand the Eagles left 13 men stranded on the bases.

V.M.D. moved into the lead in the third when Duffy doubled against the centre field wall and scored on Noel Morgan's single through the middle. Four solid base knocks provided the shipbuilders with three runs in the fourth. Eagles' Jone run came in the sixth when Joe Travis went all the way to third on Reg Paterson's error in right field and scored on an outfield out.

Showing a lot of smart spot ball pitching, Cy Shillito on the mound for the V.M.D., gave up seven hits, walked one and struck out three. Bill Prior, working for the Eagles, while he fanned four and walked a pair, Shillito turned in a smart fielding performance in the centre of the diamond, coming up with eight assists during the evening.

HARNEY PLAYS

Laurel Harney made his first appearance behind the plate for the V.M.D. and the veteran catcher came up with two hits in five trips to the plate. Although outlived 11 to 10 the Flyers played better ball to defeat the Army. Billy Surphils, on the mound for the R.C.A.F., got himself into trouble several times, but always managed to choke off Army threats. Lloyd Cann worked the nine innings for the Army and bumped into a lot of trouble through walks and errors at critical moments.

Two hits and an error along with the V.M.D. and the veteran catcher came up with two hits in five trips to the plate. Although outlived 11 to 10 the Flyers played better ball to defeat the Army. Billy Surphils, on the mound for the R.C.A.F., got himself into trouble several times, but always managed to choke off Army threats. Lloyd Cann worked the nine innings for the Army and bumped into a lot of trouble through walks and errors at critical moments.

with a pair of free passes to first gave the Flyers three runs in the second and a 4 to 1 margin and they were never headed for the rest of the game. Airmen added another pair in the fourth, while the Army came back with one in the sixth and two in the seventh. In the last inning the troops threatened by getting two men on the bags with two out but Surphils fanned Werstein to end the game.

Surphils struck out six and Cann seven, while the former walked three and Cann four. Brian Forster, Flyers' second baseman, led the hitters with three for four.

Short scores follow:
R. H. E.
Army 4 11 3
R.C.A.F. 6 10 2
Batteries: Cann and Emard; Surphils and Adshad.

'Y' Swimmers Show Well at Vancouver

Coach Archie McKinnon was back in Victoria today with a group of 12 Y.M.C.A. swimmers, after making a splendid showing against splashes of the V.A.S.C. in a friendly dual meet at the Crystal Pool, Vancouver, Saturday night.

The "Y" performers picked up six firsts, 14 seconds and five thirds with Peter and Ina Salmon each scoring a pair of victories in the breaststroke and individual medleys. Members of the winning relay teams were: Girls, Joan Morgan, Eileen Smythe and Ina Salmon boys, Don Smyth, Peter Salmon and Wade Hansen.

Richmond Wins

VANCOUVER (CP)—Richmond eliminated St. Andrews from the Mainland Cup soccer competition when they defeated the Scots, 1 to 0, in a semifinal game here Saturday before a crowd of 1,200 people.

Richmond should have won in regular time, but missed a penalty kick 10 minutes after the second half started.

Buster Byford, a juvenile from Marpole, won the game with a fine goal five minutes from the end of extra time.

Colwood Champion

who captured the championship of the Colwood Golf Club Sunday with a 3 and 2 victory over Rusty Dunnett in the 36-hole final. After being 3 down at the end of the first 18, Dunnett, playing in his first championship final, made a stiff fight of it in the afternoon. Lineham regained the trophy he held for three years back in the 1920s. Cliff Denham won first flight honors with a 2 and 1 victory over Alex Straith.

The brown mare finished second the first time out at Calgary.

Sam Byrd Wins Golf

Shoots 10 Under Par

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Sam Byrd, former New York Yankee outfielder, coasted to victory Sunday in the $17,500 Inquirer Invitational golf tournament, and pocketed first prize of $6,700 in war bonds.

The Detroit pro toured the Torresdale-Frankford course in a one-over-par 72, and won by seven strokes with a 10-under-par 274 for the 72 holes. Previously he had fired rounds of 66, 67 and 69 to lead at the end of each of the four days of play. Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N.Y., the duration national open champion, pulled into the place

TORONTO (CP)—The horse, Careless Knight, led a blamefree life for five years after reforming from his earlier mean ways, but an unhappy association with the old days threw him off in Toronto's Dufferin Park last week.

The Knight, owned by W. T. Northgrave, was a killer in his youth, and in fact the meanest of mean actors. The beatings he got when his trainers were trying to gentle him only made him worse—until his present owner took him over and tamed him with kindness. For five years he was a model of propriety and proved a stout-hearted racer.

But when they tried to start a race at the seven-furlong post at Dufferin, Careless Knight snorted and reared, and then set off right lustily through a gate that was carelessly left open. He was eventually pulled up and brought back but was disqualified.

Reason for his fall from grace was not hard to find. The stable where he was quartered in his early days and took so many drubbings was just behind the seven-furlong post. And that one fact put fear into the Knight's head again, and momentarily brought back the cussedness after all these years.

SAY UNCLE

Uncle and nephew don't often meet in an athletic event, and it's not often they are evenly matched. But that's what happened at Chatham, Ont., during a track meet. Gerald Gillett wound up in a deadlock with nephew Gilbert Billett after a stirring contest in the sprints and jumps. Both uncle and nephew incidentally, are 12 years old, and they met in a school track meet.

MEANDERINGS

Day and Wentworth were familiar names along the N.H.L. trails a few years back, and they may be again in the future. Kerry Day, nine-year-old son of Toronto Maple Leaf's coach, Hay Day, won his first crest as a member of the Braves who won the Islington School League in Toronto last winter. Marvin Wentworth, 10, played defence for Etobicoke Pee Wees in the style his pop, Cy Wentworth of Montreal Maroons, taught him. They ran off three dead heats in one day at Mount Royal race track in Montreal. This is believed a record of some sort or other. Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning says that chances of a jockey becoming a bigtimer are much better if he happens to look like one. Gail Smith might have been the best rider in the world, Herb continues, but he certainly traveled in the highest of high styles and associated only with top-ranking horsemen. End of the success story came when Smith rode Bounding Home to a victory over the favored Pensive in the Belmont Stakes.

Faltering Yankees Drop Doubleheader

They may be slipping, but don't count the world champion New York Yankees out of the running in the American League baseball race yet.

The Yanks lost a doubleheader to Boston Red Sox Sunday 2 to 1 and 4 to 1, extending their string of defeats to 11 of their last 13 starts. However, last year, when things looked blackest, they won eight in a row and followed through by winning the flag and the world series.

Meantime St. Louis Cardinals, National League champs, gained two games over their nearest competitors by whipping Cincinnati twice 3 to 1 and 4 to 1, while Chicago Cubs shut out Pittsburgh twice 5 to 0 and 1 to 0.

The Cards set a league record for double-plays in a doubleheader by making nine twin killings—four in the opener and five in the nightcap—in backing up six-hit twirling by both George Mungler and Harry Gumbert. Walker Cooper whiffed Kuroski and Danny Littwhiler hit consecutive homers for the Cards in the nightcap.

Paul Erickson turned in a two-hitter and Bob Chipman a five-hitter for the Cubs as they blanked the Pirates.

Chicago White Sox beat Dizzy Trout 4 to 2 for their eighth straight triumph in the first game of a twin bill with Detroit, but had their streak snapped in the afterpiece when Stubby Overmire won 1 to 0 on Ray York's ninth-inning single.

BROWNS GET SPLIT

A grand slam seventh-inning home run by pinch-hitter Gene Moore gave the first-place St. Louis Browns a split with Cleveland. The Indians easily took the opener 13 to 1 behind Mel Harder, but Moore's round-tipped homer in the nightcap gave Bob Muncie and the Browns a 2 to triumph.

New York Giants swept a doubleheader from the Phillies, both by scores of 6 to 8, with the second game going 12 innings before Phil Weintraub singled Mel Ott home with the winning tally. Nap Reyes' ninth-inning single won the opener.

Bobo Newson and Luman Harris, aided by Joe Berry's rickety pitching, twirled Philadelphia Athletics to a double victory over Washington 6 to 1 and 6 to 5.

Brooklyn and Boston Braves divided their twin bill. The Dodgers won the opener 5 to 4 in 10 innings on Howie Schultz' triple and an outfield fly. The Braves broke a six-game losing streak by taking the nightcap 8 to 5.

COAST LEAGUE

Portland Beavers lost both games of a Coast League doubleheader Sunday to the Los Angeles Angels, but retained top standing at the end of a week which tightened the pennant chase as lower-half club walloped the other leaders.

The San Francisco Seals, who started the week's play in a tie with Portland for the lead, dropped back to third place while losing three week-end games to the tallend Sacramento Solons. The Seals made five errors in the opener and four more miscues in the nightcap as Sacramento was winning the Sunday games 9 to 4 and 11 to 1.

Seattle split with Oakland 1 to 2 and 2 to 1 Sunday, and moved into second place, although the A's won the series 4 games to 3.

San Diego remained one percentage point behind the fourth place Hollywood Stars by splitting Sunday's doubleheader. The Padres won the opener 7 to 1, but lost the final game 7 to 4.

Nazis' Ablest Generals Now in France Preparing For Fight-to-Finish

LONDON (Special)—First critical period in the battle for the liberation of Europe is expected to develop between now and next week-end.

Germany's ablest generals are now on the western front preparing for a fight to the finish.

They realize it will be their last major effort of this war. It seems that the Germans learned a lesson from the fighting around Anzio, where their forces attacked the invading Allied forces with maximum strength as soon as they reached the beaches. The artillery fire of the small British-American fleet compelled the Germans to withdraw with heavy losses.

AVOIDING ANZIO MISTAKE

This mistake has not been repeated by the Germans during this week's operations.

It appears that the German fortifications up to about 12 miles from the seashore were not important. The German high command realized that no pillboxes or fortresses could resist the fire from the Allied battleships.

Our real opposition will come in an area which cannot be covered by the fleets' guns.

AVIATION'S FUNCTION

Aviation's main task will be to disrupt the enemy's lines of communication, supply bases and concentrations.

Well-constructed fortifications can be damaged only slightly by even the heaviest bombs. This has been shown in Italy and particularly in the Central Pacific where at Tarawa the American forces suffered severe losses because they relied on aviation rather than gun power for the destruction of the Japanese fortifications.

MAYBE 20 MILES INLAND

According to reports from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters, it appears there was neither a tactical nor strategic element of surprise in the present operations on the French coast. This would explain why the only engagements so far have been minor ones.

The Germans obviously are watching the Allied concentrations before deciding to strike back. It is certain that they will counterattack with strength as soon as our invasion force has penetrated deeper into the country—at least 20 miles inland.

NOT STARTED YET

Gen. Eisenhower has studied the situation carefully and has not lulled himself into the hope that the main job after occupation of a number of important beaches will be to mop up strong German forces.

The main battle for Europe has not yet started.

We are trying to rush across the Channel under the protection of the fleet and air arm as many troops and material as possible to overcome the first shock of the Germans. That this will be delivered with tremendous strength is a foregone conclusion.

NAZIS' LAST MAJOR RESISTANCE

The German high command did not intend to put up a bluff when it concentrated the best available units of the battle-tried but not yet battle-weary German army.

The Nazi troops are now concentrating to begin the last major resistance in this war. That it will be fierce no one in the Allied camp doubts. The Germans' best troops, the leftovers of the Luftwaffe—upward of 4,000 planes—and their ablest generals are now in France ready for a fight to the finish.

NO SHUTTLING TO RUSSIAN FRONT

In responsible military quarters it is believed that the Russian offensive from the east will have no effect on developments in the west.

The reserves in the Reich will be used to fill the gaps in the east, south and west. But no one expects any shuffling of forces from east to west this summer.

Mine Detectors Locate Snipers

By LEWIS HAWKINS

ON THE BEACH OF NORMANDY (AP)—Snipers, who have been one of the deadliest obstacles facing Americans all along this central sector of the front, have concealed themselves so effectively that at least one unit of the First Division resorted to the use of mine detectors to find them.

The detectors were particularly effective against Germans hidden in small dugouts entered by small sod-covered trap doors. The Germans made a practice of leaving the door shut until the Americans passed, then putting it up and taking a shot or two before popping back.

The dugouts were so ingeniously built that it often was impossible to see them even when standing nearby, but the mine detectors registered metal underground.

Canadians Took 3 Towns First Day Of Invasion

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE (Delayed-CP)—Three small coastal towns on the Bay of Seine—Courseulles-sur-Mer, Berniers-sur-Mer and St. Aubin-sur-Mer—fell to the Canadians in the initial stages of this invasion assault today (Tuesday).

At Courseulles two western Canada infantry units, supported by Canadian tanks, carried out the attack and after breaking through the beachline defences the Canadians went into the town, capturing it in fierce street fighting.

At Berniers, an eastern Canada regiment landed on the machine-gun-swept beach and, despite the fact supporting tanks did not land in time to aid, the regiment captured the town and knocked out the principal German stronghold on the beach. (This was the first indication of the parts of Canada represented in the initial assault.)

A mile farther east another eastern unit with tanks and the aid of British commandos drove the enemy out of St. Aubin.

U.S. Paratroopers Captured 800 Nazis; Drop Among Them

By ROBERT REUBEN
SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE—One unit of U.S. paratroopers who landed deep in enemy territory have captured and are holding under guard 800 Elite German paratroopers who were dropped almost on top of them.

The Americans killed hundreds more. First contact was made this morning with remnants of the U.S. battalion, which suffered heavy casualties, when Lieut. L. A. Barling, Clinton, Mass., and Lieut. Charles Sentarsiero, Dunmore, Pa., returned, seeking food, medical supplies and ammunition.

The unit had been ranging the countryside in the flooded French marshlands for three days with only the food and ammunition they carried on their persons.

An additional 200 prisoners have been rounded up in nearby areas by other small groups of the paratroopers.

Wounded Flown Back to Britain

The rapid establishment of air bases on liberated French territory not only gave close fighter cover, but permitted air evacuation of wounded men.

"Planes of the 9th Air Force Troop Carrier Command are evacuating wounded from landing grounds in the beachhead areas from strips constructed by special airfield engineers' units," headquarters announced.

"The first wounded were landed at an airfield in Britain at 1:10 p.m. (4:10 a.m., P.D.T.) today."

'Czar of Heaven' Suicides in Jail

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—

Louis Popoff, member of the Radical Sons of Freedom, Doukhobor sect and self-styled "Czar of Heaven," was found dead in his penitentiary cell here today. The body was hanging from a ventilator grill. Popoff was sentenced in Nelson April 22 to two years in prison for nude parading.

Prison officials said it was believed Popoff used rawhide shoes laces for a noose and a chair as a scaffold.

Popoff attracted attention in Nelson by parading in the streets wearing an eccentric headress of 21 oranges gathered in a net.

B.C. Nurse Dies

Second Boy Dies From Injuries in Army Car Crash

Robin Sim, second of two boys critically injured in Thursday's army truck accident at Lyall and Lamson Streets, died at 1:15 Saturday afternoon, hospital authorities announced. His companion, Andre Gagnon, had succumbed to his injuries Friday.

Robin and his schoolmate, Andre Gagnon, on their way to school Thursday, were waiting on the boulevard of Lyall Street at the time of the accident. A large army truck, driven by Sgt. C. J. L. Wigley, R.C.A.S.C., and carrying 14 C.W.A.C. personnel coming west along the road, apparently went out of control and, going off the road, struck the two youngsters.

Robin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Sim, live at 500 Joffre St.

300,000 New Houses Needed in Canada

He was told by Ald. George Buscombe, chairman of the civic building committee, that Vancouver's share of the total ought to be at least 20,000.

The two officials held a private conference.

Pole Soldiers Told Not to Shoot Allies

There is no "Royal Road" to Berlin. It's fighting all the way and Canada's Army needs every man it can get. That's why, today, you should volunteer for overseas service. You'll need months of intensive training to make you fighting-fit.

Don't be a stay-at-home and let the other fellow do it. Get into a man's uniform with the G.S. badge of honour on your sleeve. If we're going to win this war, we'll have to do more than just read about it in the papers.

Inquest Adjourned On Death of Boys

Inquest into the deaths of Andre Gagnon, 14, and Robin Sim, 13, who died following injuries received when they were run down by an army truck on Lyall Street Thursday morning, was adjourned to Saturday afternoon at 2, in McCall Bros. Funeral Home today.

One important witness was ill in hospital, it was stated.

Following the adjournment, jurors went to Lampson and Lyall Streets, where they viewed the scene of the accident, and then went to Work Point Barracks where they examined the army truck by which the boys were fatally injured.

Dr. George Hall said he saw the two boys when they were first taken to hospital and said that, in his opinion, there was no doubt the deaths of the two youngsters were due to head injuries. Two other doctors, who later attended the boys, were called in, he said, and they felt the injuries were so bad there was no hope for recovery. A Gagnon, 472 Fraser Street, father of Andre, said his son always went the same way to school and had always been instructed to be careful of traffic. E. R. Sim, 500 Joffe Street, father of Robin, also said his son had been taught to be careful of traffic.

Jurors called for the inquest were: Thomas R. Myers, foreman, L. A. Marston, S. S. Orrick, M. O'Connor, J. M. Morris and G. F. Cooper.

Funeral service for the two boys was held at McCall Bros. this afternoon, 130 of their former schoolmates attending.

Normal Students Gain Experience

Victoria Normal School pupils, their studies finished, are now gaining practical teaching experience in rural schools, the educational department said today.

The 70 students are in schools nearest their homes, under guidance of the regular teachers. They spend the last three weeks of their normal year in this way. No successor to the late Dr. V. L. Denton as principal of Victoria Normal will be made before mid-summer, Hon. H. G. T. Perry, Minister of Education, said today.

Mr. Perry has returned after addressing the N. naimo meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association and meeting the school board of Alberni and Port Alberni.

Interior Indians Work On Farms

Indians are now working on the land in the interior of B.C. and are proving satisfactory. Agriculture Minister MacDonald said today on his return from Vernon.

A conference was recently held between Indians and farmers and arrangements were made for the natives to help with the crops during the summer months, the minister said.

Sterling Qualities Of Teacher Outlined By Dr. S. R. Laycock

Dr. S. R. Laycock, professor of educational psychology, University of Saskatchewan, one of Canada's most distinguished educators, is visiting Victoria schools today in the course of a western survey of education for the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, of which he is a director.

He is observing the effect of the teacher's personality on children; considers the behavior of school children reflects the inner resources and pattern of adjustment on the teacher. Tonight, at the Empress Hotel, Dr. Laycock will speak under the sponsorship of the Victoria and District P.T.A. Council on "Parents' Responsibility for the Right Kind of Schools."

Dr. Laycock has been surveying Canadian education along the lines of his specialized investigation for the past year.

Chief aspects of the survey Dr. Laycock is making is to assess at first hand the degrees of mental hygiene practice in the classroom. The personal stimulus value of the teacher, he said, is found to have a marked personal effect on the student. The classroom is found to strongly reflect the personality of the teacher at its head.

In Dr. Laycock's opinion a driving, fussy or intolerant teacher can have a marked reaction on the children of an entire class.

PERSONAL TOUCH
A teacher should really like and respect the pupils, he said, in outlining the first qualities of a good teacher. If the teacher respects the student, there can be no evidence of irritation.

The teacher also must be well-adjusted.

If the teacher be an insecure or unstable person he or she will be either bossy, fussy or cranky. Their own lack of judgment would affect the student by the very atmosphere created.

The personal touch is strongly emphasized by Dr. Laycock. The good teacher, he points out, does not teach subject matter. They teach pupils. They do not teach mathematics, they develop them through the boy and girl in the class. Good teaching develops student - thinking rather than student memorizing. Too much teaching of subjects becomes just the hearing of lessons and often the drumming of provided material had no real meaning for the children.

WORKING TOGETHER
Dr. Laycock says a good teacher realizes fully the value of good discipline, good ways of working together and good ways of living together.

A good teacher must also be interested in the health of the pupils in a personal sense and by the building up of individual health habits, not merely by the mass health education formulas.

Changsha Encircled By New Jap Drive, Chinese Indicate

CHUNGKING (AP) — An indication the city of Changsha was encircled was contained Monday night in a communique of the Chinese High Command which announced the Japanese were assaulting the Hunan province capital incessantly "from all directions."

Invaders attacking from the east reached a point only six miles from the beleaguered Canton-Hankow railway city, but attempts to cross the Luyang River directly to the east were repulsed, the high command said. Japanese troops apparently striving to establish a "west wall" along the Canton-Hankow railway to protect their home islands, were reported authoritatively to have opened a drive northward along the rail line to match their southward offensive in the Changsha area.

Island Fires Under Control

Higher humidity and a drop in winds have caused most of the forest fires on Vancouver Island to be brought under control, forestry officials said today.

A crew of 500 men succeeded in conquering the great Central Lake blaze which raged for two days on the west coast of the island, sweeping over 1,000 acres of logged-over land.

The Buckley Bay fire now is under control and the Chemainus blaze which destroyed two bridges has been extinguished.

Monthly meeting of the Navy Civ Credit Union will be held Tuesday evening at 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Witte, 742 View Street.

Victoria College Principal and His Wife

Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Ewing who will make their home in Victoria within the next two or three months. Dr. Ewing, recently appointed principal of Victoria College, will remain in Vancouver for the next few weeks to lecture at the Summer School there. He was formerly a member of the Vancouver Normal School staff.

Witness Jailed, Going Into Army

David Charles Russell Porter, youthful self-styled Jehovah's Witness minister of the gospel, in city court today was sentenced by Magistrate H. C. Hall to one day in jail on a charge of failing to report for military service.

Tuesday Porter will be removed from the city lock-up to Work Point Barracks for induction into the army.

Before sentence the youth thanked the court for fairness in hearing the case and Prosecutor Claude L. Harrison for co-operation in helping him prepare his own case. He said the fairness had not only been recognized by himself but also by his master, Christ Jesus.

Magistrate Hall, who had found Porter guilty, said he based his judgment on that of the B.C. Appeal Court in the Vancouver case, Rex vs. Stewart. He said he found the present case even less strong than that of Stewart, whose evidence that he was a minister of the gospel was described by the Appeal Court as "too flimsy."

Several of the young man's followers were in the courtroom for the hearing.

Asks Elk Lake Land To Train Bloodhounds

Lease of the old Elk Lake Game Farm as a site for kennels to develop and train registered English bloodhounds is sought from the city by Cecil French, in a letter on file at the City Hall today.

Mr. French proposes a rental of $1 a year for 10 years, with provision made for the present occupant, a game warden, to assist in developing and training the strain.

This dogs, Mr. French believes, would be of great value in police work and in locating lost persons, and might be on call for use in adjacent states and provinces.

a combined lamp-standard base and rubbish receptacle which would dovetail with plans for improved lighting of city streets in place of the cluster lights.

The Victoria Horticultural Society, in another letter, asks the usual $100 grant given annually by Victoria to that body.

A permit for a $4,620, five-room single family home at 1720 Hollywood Crescent was issued by the city building inspector's department today to R. H. Ludbrook.

Seaforths Hold Drumhead Service

Capt. J. D. Hobden, Seaforth regimental padre, conducting service.

A drum head service taken by Capt. J. D. Hobden, regimental padre, was held on the grounds of Gordon Head camp Sunday morning and attended by members of the Second Battalion (R.) Seaforth Highlanders of Canada at the camp for two weeks' training.

Participating in the parade under Lt. Col. D. R. Blair, camp commandant, were: The Seaforths, 29th Coy. Veterans' Guard of Canada (C.A.), under com-

Await New Minister For Next Move On City Postwar Plans

Further action on Greater Victoria postwar projects advanced to Ottawa by R. W. Mayhew, M.P., will await appointment of the new federal rehabilitation minister, Mr. Mayhew said here today.

That appointment, he added, should be made shortly.

"Surveys and preliminary work have been going on for some time on city and Oak Bay projects, but nothing definite has been done yet," Mr. Mayhew said. "There can be no physical action of a construction nature until after the war. The next move awaits appointment of a rehabilitation minister. He will, it is expected, take up the job at the point to which it has been advanced by the public works department."

The Victoria member, who will return to Ottawa by plane Thursday, or by train later, expects the present session to extend beyond August.

NO AUGUST PROROGATION

"We will never be finished by the end of August unless there is a complete change of heart on the part of a dozen men who are doing all the talking," he said.

The House has still to consider the Bank Act revision which Mr. Mayhew does not expect to be out of committee until the end of this month. Several other debatable items, including the proposed floor structure for farm products prices will take up considerable time, as will the Family Allowance issue.

The budget has not yet been brought down, said Mr. Mayhew. It was usually good for three or four weeks' debate, although that time might be reduced in view of the detailed debate on war estimates. Civilian estimates, Mr. Mayhew said, had not been brought down and the CBC question is still in committee.

HEALTH ACT DUE

Considerable time will also be taken on the medical health bill, which is not yet out of committee and must secure provincial government consideration before it is finally passed by the Dominion government.

Mr. Mayhew saw no immediate prospects of an election. "Members are not thinking election right now. Even the Saskatchewan elections now proceeding give you a feeling of unreality in comparison to what is happening in France. We can't talk about election until what is going on there is over," he said.

Wilby Appeal

Appeal by New York State of the judgment of Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in granting a habeas corpus writ for Ralph M. Wilby will be heard by the B.C. Court of Appeal in Vancouver Wednesday morning.

Date of the appeal was set when the case was called in Vancouver today. Wilby is wanted in New York to face 17 grand larceny charges involving $275,984.

Man Jumps From Train

B.C. police here were advised today that A. Larsen, 65, who jumped from a Canadian National train Friday night between Irvine and Wabron, flag stations 85 miles north of Kamloops, had been found three miles from the scene Sunday.

Larsen, said by police to be mentally ill, suffered a dislocated shoulder, head injuries and bruises. He was removed to Kamloops hospital. Relatives at Fort Frances, Ont., have been notified.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

DEATHS
HENRY—At the Royal Jubilee Hospital three weeks ago June 8, Mary Helen Henry of 1023 North Park Street, born in Laneshire, England, the late Mrs. Henry, who was 63 years of age, had resided in this city for the last eight years. She is survived by her husband, Arthur, at the family residence, 1701 1/2 St. J. A. Henry, Provincial Police, Duncan; F.O. A. V. Henry, Rockcliffe, Ont., three daughters, two sons in this city and seven grandchildren.

Prayers will be said this evening at 8 o'clock from the St. J. Curry & Son Funeral Home, and mass will be celebrated Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, from St. Andrew's Cathedral. Interment will take place in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

Urges Support Of Rehabilitation

Outline of rehabilitation work done by the Dominion government and an appeal to the citizens of the country to give their whole-hearted support to the vital problem of welcoming Canada's returned men, was made by Maj. A. McFarlane before a gathering of 3,000 citizens during the Naval Band Concert in Beacon Hill Park Sunday.

"Now that the momentous day we have all looked for so long has at last arrived," said Maj. McFarlane, "a great many of you will be wondering what plans have been made by the government of Canada for the reception and re-establishment of returning veterans."

At the beginning of this war, he said, the government had begun to make preparations for the day when peace would arrive and Canada's fighting men would return home. To illustrate the work done, Maj. McFarlane read a booklet on rehabilitation benefits for the services after their discharge.

He stressed, however, the necessity for the personal, sympathetic touch of the whole people, for, he said, no matter how complete and effective the official program might be, there were certain functions it was difficult for the government to perform alone.

He said that but for the fighting man, they would not be sitting "in this beautiful setting listening to this wonderful naval band."

"So," he concluded, "it is up to us to see no stone is left unturned as individuals and to extend to them that kindness and heartfelt handshake which will mean so much to them on their return."

City police at 12.35 Sunday morning, investigating a complaint of R. M. Bell, 1204 Finlayson Avenue, that someone was stealing gasoline from his car, found a five-gallon can and hose near the car but the would-be thieves had disappeared.

Part of the Job of the Royal Canadian Navy's transport fleet is the moving of heavy equipment. For this task they have the latest, most efficient machinery available from heavy trucks to powerful loaders. Two members of the transport fleet are shown above with their vehicles. On the left loading heavy reels of cables, is Gordon Duke who has been driving for 17 years. A veteran of western provinces and Rocky Mountain hauling his home is in Victoria and he joined the navy in 1940. AB. Duz, standing beside his truck, hails from Port Credit, Ont. He, too, has had many years experience and in 1940 received a prize from Goodrich Oil Company for safe driving. The navy needs motor transport drivers now. Those 35 years of age or over or of a low medical category are wanted and such men will be attached to the Shore Branch and utilized locally. Full information is available at the local Naval Recruiting Centre, H.M.C.S. Malahat, 1238 Government Street.

Heavy Shelling By Allied Ships Forces Nazis to Leave Carentan

By JAMES M. LONG
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS,
ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY
FORCE (AP)—The Germans to day said Carentan, whose flood-gates control the main water defence system of the Cherbourg Peninsula, was evacuated in order to continue a stand on ground less exposed to Allied naval guns.

As for Caen, German broadcast asserted that a British-Canadian drive had reached nearly to Troarn, nine miles east of that city six miles inland on the Orne River and that British-Canadian paratroops had landed south of Caen. British and Canadian formations were pushing ahead west of Caen, threatening the other flank. Field Marshal Rommel has mounted his fiercest armored counterattacks in this Caen sector, and Berlin said major Allied forces were concentrating for a full-fledged assault on the town.

In the centre of the 50-mile-long front, U.S. troops were advancing toward St. Lo, communications hub 20 miles inland.

As the U.S. frontal attack across the Merderet River on the Cherbourg Peninsula reached within 12 miles of the west coast roads—whose capture would seal off Cherbourg—the German-controlled Vichy radio reported U.S. troops had pushed into Quineville on the east coast.

This would put the Allies within 14 miles of Cherbourg on a four-mile front between Quineville and Montebourg, where street fighting was reported.

BIG ALLIED RESERVE

German reports said 300,000 to 400,000 Allied troops already had been poured into the bridgehead and that they represented only one-third of the assault force poised in Britain to hammer home attacks against the continent.

The bulk of the huge forces of the 21st Amphibious Army Group is still standing by to pounce on some important harbor, a German broadcast asserted.

The Berlin-Transocean Agency said sea-borne forces had been put ashore Sunday at St. Vaast la Hogue, near the northeast corner of the peninsula and east of Cherbourg.

Other enemy reports said the Allies had crossed the Orne estuary, ferrying across tanks and threatening Caen.

To the west British forces also were flanking the town by a thrust through Tilly-sur-Seuilles, where armored columns were engaged in fierce combat.

Jive vs. Classics Rio Film Theme

Parading a line-up of extraordinary youthful talent, Universal's novel comedy musical, "Mister Big," comes today to the Rio Theatre. Donald O'Connor, one of Hollywood's most remarkable juvenile performers, is starred. Headlined with him are Gloria Jean and Peggy Ryan.

Jive versus the classics is the theme of "Mister Big," and the idea is said to have been developed for the screen in entertaining style. Locale of the bright story is a school of the theatre, where a gang of jive-minded kids mingle boogie-woogie with high-brow compositions.

Other popular players in the cast are Robert Paige, Elyse Knox, Samuel S. Hinds and Bobby Scheerer.

Orson Welles Film At Atlas Theatre

Handled with a realism that makes it one of the most talked-of films of the year, R.K.O. Radio's "Journey Into Fear," now being shown at the Atlas Theatre, deals with secret police operations in southern Europe.

The action takes place aboard a freighter sailing the Black Sea and in various seaports of Turkey and Russia. Striking characterization, dramatic handling of adventure scenes, both as to settings and camera angles, and a musical score fitted to the mood of the story, combine to provide alternate thrills and chills.

Joseph Cotten plays the ordnance expert and Dolores del Rio the dancer.

Orson Welles, producer of the film, is cast as a gallant but efficient secret police officer whose job is to save Cotten's life.

Also being shown on the same program is Ingrid Bergman in "Intermezzo."

Pathos, Comedy In Capitol Film

They were strictly comedy stars, but after fans see Paramount's "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," Eddie Bracken and Betty Hutton will be numbered among those whose dramatic ability is equal to their talent for making people laugh.

In spite of the fact "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," which is coming today to the Capitol Theatre, is a hilarious comedy, there are still many undertones of pathos which give the two stars an opportunity to prove their dramatic worth.

This latest Preston Sturges story centres around the dilemma of a small-town girl, Betty Hutton, who comes home one morning from a dance with the vague recollection that she had married a soldier and neither had given the right name. The

Lonely Ranch Scene Of York Production

The cast of the picture, "Of Mice and Men," Hal Roach's latest production which will be presented at the York Theatre today through United Artists release, went native with a vengeance.

The famous novel by John Steinbeck was filmed at Agoura Ranch, a lonely spot 40 miles north of Hollywood. The recreational facilities were rather limited, and members of the cast had to find their fun as any California ranch worker would.

A glance at the ranch-yard of the set disclosed a scene authentically rural. Principals, clad in the working clothes called for by the script, amused themselves during lulls in the shooting by learning the pastimes of the peasants.

A pair of city slickers, for instance, showed the company the fine points of barnyard golf. They were Burgess Meredith and Lon Chaney Jr., who played the parts of George and Lennie, the strangely contrasted duo of bandle-stiffs.

Romantic Comedy At Plaza, Oak Bay

A lonely hearts club suspected by authorities of being a racket is the key setting for Universal's romantic comedy feature starring the Andrews sisters, "Always a Bridesmaid," at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres.

The singing stars of stage, screen and radio play the roles of hostesses at the club, while Patricia Knowles and Grace McDonald play romantic leads as rival investigators attempting to find out if the establishment is a "front" for racketeers.

The Andrews Sisters sing five numbers and the Jivin' Jacks and Jills, youthful jitterbug group, perform to the tune of the novelty hit, "Mr. Five By Five."

Featured players include Charles Butterworth, Billy Gilbert and Anne Rooney. Erle C. Kenton directed.

'Life With Father' Riot of Laughter

Seats go on sale today for that laugh riot, "Life With Father," featuring Harry Bannister and Mary Lane, which will be presented by Oscar Serlin on the stage of the Royal Theatre next Saturday evening.

From the way in which mail orders have been pouring in during the last few days, it appears playgoers of this city are going to greet this great comedy success with as much acclaim as they did on its last visit to Victoria.

Paulette Goddard Starred At Cadet

According to Paulette Goddard, she must have been born under a lucky star. Her latest role in "Standing Room Only," at the Cadet Theatre, is just another in a succession of splendid parts awarded her by Paramount.

In "Standing Room Only," Paulette plays the part of a secretary to handsome Fred MacMurray, toy factory executive. When they visit Washington on business, however, their identities are changed to cook and butler for that's the only way they can manage to get lodgings.

DOMINION THEATRE

Madame Nazimova referred to the fact that since the days of the silent screen she has maintained her home in Hollywood, occupying a unit in a fashionable apartment house which she has owned since that time.

"As a result, wherever I go in the studios I see, among the new faces, the old familiar ones that I have known constantly for more than a quarter century. Old Hollywood isn't dead. It's still very much alive."

After completing "In Our Time," now at the Dominion Theatre, she was asked: "Do you intend to resume your work on the stage and screen?"

"That will be impossible," she replied. "I have never left the stage and screen. They are my life."

and divided into three acts of two scenes each, the locale of "Life With Father" is New York City in the late 1880's when women were still wearing train dresses and bustles and men's customary headgear was the stove-pipe hat. Of course, transportation was by horse and buggy, hansom cab and trolley car, and women did not smoke nor color their finger nails, and "cafe society" was something unimaginable. In fact, the period was what has been called "the good old days"—and they were quaint and food for lots of fun.

St. Mary's Wins Cub Competition

Left to right, standing: Max Twomey, Maj. H. B. Hunter, district commissioner; Freeman King, field commissioner; and Harold Stone, St. Mary's cub leader, sits in his wheel chair from which he has directed cubs for 14 years. Twomey and Stone are members of the cast of "Tomorrow the World" and are from Chicago.

St. Mary's South Pack won competitions in the large rally of Wolf Cub packs at Beacon Hill Park Saturday afternoon. Brentwood was second and Sidney third.

Packs competing in addition to the winners were: Cathedral, 2nd Cathedral, Cadboro Bay, St. Mary's North, Oak Bay United, 3rd Victoria, North Quadra, Royal Oak, Colquitz, Keating, Strawberry Vale, St. John's, Victoria West, Langford, Church of Our Lord, St. Paul's, and Brentwood Sea Cadets.

The packs competed in rope tying, somersaults, hopping, skipping, signaling, skin the snake, first aid and jungle dance. Sidney won the jungle dance, which is an interpretation of stories by Kipling from his Jungle Book.

The rally opened with the forming of the parade circle under the direction of Freeman King, field commissioner. On the order, "Pack, pack, pack," the circle drew in on Acting Mayor Archie Wills and Maj. H. B. Hunter, district commissioner, who stood at the base of the flagpole in the centre of the field.

the totem of St. Mary's South, which he handed to the acting mayor and proceeded to lead the grand howl. He gave the cub salute and the pledge, "Akela, we do our best," which the packs repeated.

Three United States scouts attended the rally. They are members of the company which presented "Tomorrow the World,"

48,000 Volunteers Needed for Canadian Army This Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Brig. James Mess, deputy adjutant-general in charge of recruiting, said in an address carried over a national network of the CBC Sunday night that at least 48,000 volunteers are needed this year to reinforce the Canadian army in the field to care for "normal wastage and casualties in the battle now on." Brig. Mess said that if Canadian men and women can be brought to regard themselves as human resources for the "greatest cause ever served," problems of manpower and production will slip into the past and "we shall get our volunteers."

Men and women who through no fault of their own cannot "join up" deserve sympathy, not censure. Those individuals who "flagrantly repudiate the call to go for fear, laziness or sheer selfishness deserve our contempt, but still have the opportunity to redeem themselves."

Between these groups are the thousands who are "ready to serve and have got what it takes but have not yet seen where their duty lies."

It must be left to the conscience, manhood and love of country of this group to give the answer, Brig. Mess said. "I plead with every employer of labor to resurvey his manpower requirements and deferments," he said. "I plead with every business and industrial group to call for a joint effort in taking whatever measures are necessary to make available the needed reinforcements for our field army."

Queen Alexandra Solarium benefited from a dance held by the combined committees of the Elks' Lodge and the W.A. in the lodge rooms for servicemen and women. Next business meeting will be June 22 at 8.

Island Crop Report

Strawberries are of good quality this year, says the Agriculture Department's up-to-the-minute horticultural news letter.

Loganberries and raspberries are about in full bloom. Gooseberries have been on the market for some time.

The set of tree fruits is variable, but there should be an increased production of all kinds over last year, the letter says. Blossom blight and aphids have been very bad on plum trees and tent caterpillars have been prevalent.

Vegetables from Vancouver Island are moving in fair volume. Cabbage root maggot has been bad on all brassica crops. Flea beetles have also caused damage. Two carloads of hot-house tomatoes were shipped east June 1 and 3. Early potatoes are well advanced on the island.

Hay and grain crops are in good condition. Some early hay crops have already been cut.

Inflation and Deflation... Evil Companions

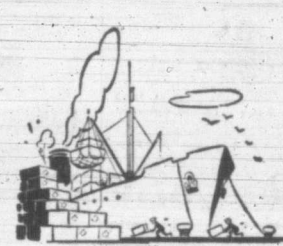

Past wars have always brought some degree of inflation.

Goods were scarce... Prices and wages sky rocketed to unnatural heights.

Then one day the war stopped...

in due time goods became plentiful again

Scarcity prices could no longer be demanded and "spiralling" prices went "pop"

and came down with a bang people stopped buying because they thought prices would go still lower merchandise dropped in value — retailers went bankrupt factories closed and unemployment followed farms were fore-closed distress was general and deflation was in the saddle.

That is why in this war prices are controlled — so that they will not ruin buyers in a rise or sellers in a slump.

Price ceilings—wage and salary controls—rationing—Victory Bonds—increased taxation—are all part of a grand strategy to head off Inflation—thus preventing Deflation.

PREVENTION OF INFLATION IS THE BEST PROTECTION AGAINST DEFLATION

This advertisement is the eighth of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing further increases in the cost of living now and deflation later. LISTEN TO "IN THE SPOTLIGHT" RADIO PROGRAMME EVERY SUNDAY NIGHT 7:30 P.M., E.D.T.
